Congress faces $$$ deadline

stopgap efforts running out and a government shutdown threatening anew, the House and Senate this week try to resolve their differences and pass the biggest spending bill in history.

Lawmakers also must raise the ceiling on the national debt to avert a government default. And a third finance measure — a $13.6 billion deficit-cutting package — is needed to meet the mandate of the Gramm-Rudman law.

The 99th Congress failed to adjourn as scheduled Friday, as lawmakers could not leave for the campaign trail without meeting those fiscal responsibilities.

All remaining major bills — also including an election-year program to fight drugs — have been passed in different forms by both chambers. House-Senate conference committees will seek compromises that can be ratified quickly by both bodies and signed by President Reagan.

The highest hurdle is the huge measure authorizing government spending for fiscal 1987, which began Oct. 1. An interim eight-day measure, which averted a government shutdown last week, expires after Wednesday.

The House has approved a $562 billion package, $4 billion more than the Senate approved late Friday. The House was more generous to domestic programs but provided only $283.5 billion for military spending compared with $292 billion in the Senate bill and $320 billion originally requested by the president.

The White House has made repeated veto threats, listing dozens of objections to both House and Senate provisions. But the most heated dispute is over arms control.

The Democratic-controlled House approved major restrictions on Reagan's defense programs, including bans on testing of anti-satellite and nuclear weapons, bans on production of chemical weapons and some nuclear weapons, and a freeze on spending for "Star Wars" anti-missile research.

Reagan and conservative allies in the Senate insist that the House back off so the president can have maximum bargaining leeway in his meeting with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Iceland at the end of this week.

House Democrats, however, say they want to see at least part of their arms-control initiative enacted, and are considering keeping Congress in session until they get it.

The spending package is the largest ever because it includes what normally are 13 separate appropriations bills.

REIGN IN FORECAST — One of these seven senior girls will reign as Homecoming Queen 1986-87 at Belle Vernon Area High School. The new queen will be announced and crowned by BVA principal William Kubin during halftime ceremonies at the Big 10 Conference football game between BVA and Brownsville on Friday, Oct. 10, at 7:30 p.m. at James Weir Stadium in Rostraver Twp. Members of the Homecoming Court are (left to right) Karen Vargo, Gayle Ann Toth, Lindale Patterson, Bobbi Siner, Jennifer Kosco, Lisa Williams, and Lisa Bonde.

BVA readies Homecoming

Chosen by the Senior Class, the new queen will be announced and crowned Friday, Oct. 10, at halftime of the Big 10 Conference football game between BVA and Brownsville at 7:30 p.m. at James Weir Stadium in Rostraver Twp.

Candidates for the queen's crown are Lisa Bonde, Jennifer Kosco, Lindale Patterson, Bobbi Siner, Gayle Ann Toth, Karen Vargo, and Lisa Williams.

The eighth annual Homecoming celebration at Belle Vernon Area is open to the public. Festivities are sponsored by the FAST (Faculty-Administration-Students-Together) Council at the high school under the direction of faculty advisor George Procko Jr. William Kubin, BVA principal, will crown the new queen.

Here is a capsule loo at the Homecoming Queen Court members:

★Lisa Bonde — Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Bonde of Belle Vernon, she is a college preparatory student planning a career as a physical therapist. She will attend the University of Pittsburgh. Miss Bonde has been a cheerleader for three years and is co-captain of the varsity squad. She also is a member of FAST Council, prom committee, Senior Committee and National Honor Society and serves as senior class vice president. Her escort will be David McGee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd McGee.

★Jennifer Kosco — Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kosco of Rostraver Twp., she is a college preparatory student who plans to attend either Duquesne University or the University of Pittsburgh to obtain a degree in nursing. She has lettered for three years as a diver and swimmer, has served as manager of the BVA soccer team, is an officer of Medical Interest Club, plays clarinet in the concert band and is a member of the colorguard with the marching band, is a member of Senior Committee, and also participates in Powder Puff football. A member of Who's Who Among American High School Students, Miss Kosco will be escorted by Matthew Corsi, son of Floyd Corsi and Mrs. Patricia Mitchell.

★Lindale Patterson — Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale K. Patterson of Belle Vernon, she is a college preparatory student planning to attend college to major in English. She has been a soccer statistician for three years and a member of the band's color guard for three years, serving as captain this year. A member of National Honor Society, she is Senior Class president and a member of the Senior Committee.

Russians OK locale of summit

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — The Soviet Union accepted a banquet hall as the site for this week's meeting between President Reagan and Mikhail S. Gorbachev and told Iceland's government that Gorbachev's wife will also be coming to Reykjavik.

Alongside the two developments disclosed Sunday by Prime Minister Steingrimur Hermannsson of Iceland came a television report that U.S. civil rights leader the Rev. Jesse Jackson will be in Reykjavik during the two-day summit that begins Saturday.

The report on Icelandic state television said the reason for Jackson's visit was not known. Jackson visited the last superpower summit in Geneva Nov. 19-21 to campaign for Soviet dissidents.

Hermannsson told The Associated Press that Soviet Ambassador Yevgeni Kosarev informed him by telephone Sunday night that Moscow had agreed to hold this week's summit at the Hofdi, a historic house overlooking Reykjavik Bay.

The prime minister said Kosarev also informed him that Raisa Gorbachev would be accompanying her husband, the Communist Party general secretary.

Hermannsson said Moscow's acceptance of the Hofdi was "a great relief."

Earlier Sunday, other Icelandic officials expressed impatience that the Soviets had taken three days to decide on the meeting site despite the mounting pressure of deadlines to prepare for the summit.

Asked whether he had also grown impatient, Hermannsson replied "Yes, a little."

The reason for the Soviet delay was not given, but U.S. and Icelandic officials said they believed it was merely bureaucratic and not politically motivated.

Hermannsson's announcement that Mrs. Gorbachev was coming was a surprise, since initially it was understood in Reykjavik that the leaders' wives would stay home. Both had attended the Geneva summit.

In Washington, White House spokesman Dale Petroskey said Sunday that President Reagan's wife Nancy "has no plans to go" with him to Reykjavik.

Relatives of U.S. hostages push for identity of captors

The Associated Press

Relatives of two American hostages said President Reagan should know who is holding their loves ones in Lebanon, while a former hostage suggested that the U.S. government take out a newspaper ad to locate the captors.

"We know who has my father, basically," Eric Jacobsen, son of American University administrator David Jacobsen, said Sunday on the CBS News program "Face the Nation." "We hear rumors all the time and they all coincide.

"You'd have to have your fingers in yours ears not to know who to go to and talk to."

Last week, the radical Shiite Moslem group Islamic Jihad released videotapes in which journalist Terry Anderson, 38, and Jacobsen, 55, bitterly criticized the U.S. government's effort, or lack of it, to obtain their release and contrasted it with the successful effort to free U.S. News & World Report correspondent Nicholas Daniloff from Soviet custody.

Reagan responded by angrily telling reporters: "There has never been a day that we have not been trying every channel to get our hostages back from Lebanon. But they were not seized by a government. We don't know who's holding them."

"I never hear anybody (respond) to him with, 'Excuse me, Mr. President, but if you don't know who to talk to, why don't you ask Terry Waite?'" Peggy Say, Anderson's sister, said on CBS.

Mrs. Say, whose brother is chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, was referring to the Anglican church official who has talked with those who said they were holding Anderson and Jacobsen.

The younger Jacobsen said a "marked increase" in the amount of communication from the captors "indicates they want to see this resolved. I can see an effort on the part of the captors to get this over as quickly as possible, and I think it needs to be reciprocated on the part of the administration."

At a news conference in Denver on Sunday, the Rev. Lawrence Martin Jenco, who was held captive with Anderson and Jacobsen until being released in July, said Reagan could easily find out who the kidnappers are.

"They have contacts," Jenco said. "Put an ad in the newspaper in the name of the American public. Ask them to let us know whom they wish us to contact."

The 51-year-old Catholic priest also suggested that Reagan declare Thanksgiving Day a day of prayer for those still being held.

Mrs. Say said that she asked a White House staffer last week, "Would you consider putting a letter in a Beirut newspaper to the captors, saying, 'The American administration is not only willing but eager to talk with you,' and the answer was, 'No. We do not negotiate with terrorists.'"

She said she did not believe her brother's videotaped criticism of the government was coerced by his captors, as Reagan implied.

Soviet submarine sinks in Atlantic

WASHINGTON (AP) — A disabled Soviet submarine sank in the Atlantic Ocean today, three days after a fire and explosion wracked the nuclear-powered vessel, Pentagon sources told The Associated Press.

There was no immediate word on casualties. One official said earlier, however, that many of the sub's crew had been evacuated to nearby Soviet merchant ships. The sub normally carries about 120 people.

The Pentagon officials, who agreed to discuss the matter only if not identified, said the Yankee-class submarine had been under tow by one of those merchant ships shortly before it went down.

The sources said they did not know if the merchant ship had been trying to maintain headway when the submarine began floundering.

The sources identified the Soviet merchant ship as the Krasnogvardeysk.

French offer taped appeals

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Islamic Jihad today released a videotape in which three French hostages appeal to their government to negotiate an end to their captivity, which one hostage said had reduced him to "skin and bones."

The tape was delivered to the office of a Western news agency in Moslem west Beirut along with a typewritten statement in Arabic from the Shiite Moslem group reiterating its terms for freeing the hostages.

The statement urged Prime Minister Jacques Chirac's government to intervene with Kuwait to release 17 Lebanese nationals imprisoned in that oil-rich Arab state for bombing the U.S. and French embassies there in December 1983.

"France is capable of resolving this issue and of getting what it wants from the countries of the area, which will lead to the release of three French hostages," the statement said.

In the tape, French hostages Marcel Fontaine, Marcel Carton and Jean-Paul Kauffmann complained that their government had abandoned them and that it was giving their families "empty promises."

"I can't stay [illegible] it any more," Fontaine, 46, vice consul of the French Embassy who was kidnapped on March 22, 1985, said on the tape, addressing his wife. "I am desperate, tired and about to fall off the cliff."

On Friday, the Shiite extremist group released a videotape from two American hostages, Terry Anderson and David Jacobsen, in which they called upon the Reagan administration to work as hard for their release as it had to free American journalist Nicholas Daniloff from Moscow, where he had been charged with spying.

Today's tape, like that released Friday, seemed designed to increase pressure on the French and U.S. governments to negotiate an end to the hostages' captivity by the Shiite extremist group believed linked to Iran. The date and circumstances under which it was made were not clear.

"I am abandoned. I am completely cut off from the outside world. It's complete emptiness," Fontaine said in his impassioned appeal. "It has been up to the new (Chirac) government to give hope, but that hope has been deceptive."

Fontaine said he felt the government was giving the families of the hostages and the French public opinion "nice promises but in reality no action."

"Listen to me," Fontaine went on, "the key to our liberation cannot be found in certain foreign countries, but it is in France. Either they (the government) want to get us free or they are abandoning us. The government will have to choose. There are not 36 solutions."

Fontaine again stressed on the hardships of captivity.

"How much longer will I be able to stand it. All that remains of me is my skin and bones. Maybe another Christmas, another New Year without you, if I am not dead before that," Fontaine told his wife.

Carton, 63, a French Embassy protocol officer who was kidnapped the same day Fontaine was abducted in a different location of Moslem west Beirut, also addressed his wife, Denise, on the tape.

"I am at the end of the rope, [illegible] to invent to tell you what I feel ... I feel I am weaker and physically and morally vulnerable. We are really at the end of the road," Carton said.

Pentagon plans officer cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department has reluctantly begun planning how to slash the number of active-duty officers in the four services by up to 6,200 men and women over the next year.

"We object to the reductions, but we're convinced that we'll probably have to do at least 2 percent in fiscal 1987," said Chapman B. Cox, the assistant secretary for personnel.

"The House and Senate have adopted different approaches in their authorization bills but both have included reductions in the officer force. We think there's such a strong [illegible] coming now that it's important to start right now in planning it."

The issue of whether the services are [illegible] officer-heavy has been seriously debated by Congress for some years now because of a con-officer ratio.

There are currently about 2.1 million men and women on active duty in the armed forces, of whom slightly more than 300,000 are officers. According to Cox, the current ratio for the four services combined is 5.9 enlisted men to every officer — the lowest that measure has been in a decade.

"That ratio dropping down below 6-to-1 is what really triggered the congressional concern," Cox said in an interview last week. "We disagree, but they've gone ahead."

According to Pentagon manpower statistics, officers comprised 14.4 percent of the total active-duty force at the end of fiscal 1985. The last time that figure stood as high was in 1972.

The House and Senate have approved different plans, but both call for reductions in officer strength in fiscal 1987, which began Oct. 1.

According to Cox, the House version calls for the Pentagon to build the enlisted-to-officer ratio back up to 6.5-to-1 by the end of fiscal 1990. That plan would require about an 8 percent cut in the number of officers over the four-year period, totaling about 26,000 men and women.

The Senate bill does not specify a precise ratio figure. Rather, it requires a reduction of 2 percent a year during each of the next three years.

"We don't know if (the final outcome) will be 2 percent for three years or 9 percent for four years, but we'll probably have to do at least 2 percent or about 6,200 in fiscal 1987," Cox said.

Cox said Friday the Pentagon could probably reduce the officer corps by 2 percent in fiscal 1987, [illegible] explained that under [illegible] law, the Pentagon has only three ways of reducing the number of officers.

The first is to cut the number of new officers being recruited. That could be done through a combination of reductions in class sizes for the Reserve Officer Training Corps program in colleges, officer candidate schools within the military and at the three military academies.

The second method is to dismiss officers in the Reserves and National Guard who have been ordered to full-time active duty. There are roughly 90,000 such officers now, many of them working in technical specialty jobs.

The third is to convene early-retirement boards, Cox said.

State House faces hazardous waste bills

HARRISBURG (AP) — The House [illegible] this week to pass three bills that would toughen laws regulating [illegible] practices.

The [illegible] initiatives, scheduled to [illegible] meeting this afternoon, also [illegible] to act on several secondary [illegible] before leaving for a recess that [illegible] them time to campaign for re-election.

This will be a calendar-clearing [illegible], according to Tony Barbush, an aide to Majority Leader James Manderino, D-Monessen.

The Senate already has recessed for the Nov. 4 election, which [illegible] half of the 50 Senate seats and all 203 House seats.

One bill in the waste package would require the Department of Environmental Resources to conduct surprise inspections of every hazardous waste disposal site at least once a month. The proposal, written by Rep. David Levdansky, D-Allegheny, also would allow citizens to accompany DER [illegible] on [illegible] of hours.

The other bills would create an office of prosecutor general to [illegible] and enforce environmental laws and would establish a fund to pay for cleanup of abandoned hazardous waste sites.

The prosecutor general, to [illegible] a $55,000 a year, would be nominated by the governor and confirmed by the Senate. The prosecutor would serve a five-year term.

The [illegible] sponsored by Rep. Thomas Michiovic, D-Allegheny, would provide $394,000 to fund the office for the remainder of the state's fiscal year, which ends in June.

Money for the Hazardous Waste Abatement, Site Cleanup and Compensation Fund would come from charging waste generators $10 a ton and [illegible] disposal sites $5 per ton.

The proposal, sponsored by Rep. Robert Freeman, D-Northampton, [illegible] the charges for waste generators to $5 a ton if the material is recycled rather than buried in a landfill. A fiscal note attached to the bill estimates annual revenue of $49.5 million.

The House also is expected to debate legislation that would outlaw dog fights and cock fights for entertainment or wagering, making offenses third-degree felonies.

Also on the voting schedule, Barbush said, are Senate bills that would establish an Office for the Deaf and Hearing Impaired in the Department of Labor and Industry and that would allow domesticated pets on the premises of nursing homes and other long-term care facilities.

Car sales dip in '86: Escort tops

DETROIT (AP) — Car sales slipped during the 1986 model year by 0.9 percent compared with the previous model year, the nation's automakers reported.

Sales figures released by the seven major domestic automakers also showed that the Ford Escort was the best-selling car of the model year.

Ford Motor Co. said it sold 415,521 of the subcompacts in the year ending Sept. 30. General Motors Corp.'s Chevrolet Celebrity was second most popular at 395,866, and the Chevrolet Cavalier was third at 328,252.

Sales in late September, the last period for which figures were reported, were down 16.7 percent from the corresponding period last year, the domestic automakers said.

Among imports, the Nissan Sentra was the best-selling car at 166,465, followed by the Toyota Corolla at 151,772, according to sales figures provided by the companies.

Waterfront lodge likely summit site

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Icelandic officials confirmed Saturday that President Reagan and Mikhail Gorbachev are likely to meet at the Hofdi, a picturesque Reykjavik bayside house said to be haunted by the ghost of a drowned woman

Foreign Ministry spokesman Sveinn Eldon said a final decision had not been made, but that neither side had voiced any objections to the Hofdi, a two-story white clapboard house

He said the more formal talks involving full delegations would probably take place at the Saga Hotel, where the Soviet leader is expected to stay during the Oct 11-12 talks Reagan is to stay at the U S Embassy

The Hofdi, overlooking Reykjavik Bay with a panoramic view of the volcanic mountains, seems to meet the two leaders' requirements for a cozy place in which to escape from the formal talks involving their aides.

It was open to visitors until Saturday, when a uniformed police officer was posted inside and barred unauthorized visitors

At the Saga Hotel, the Soviet, U S and Icelandic flags flew side by side, and heaps of sod were brought in to put in new lawns around the eight-story hotel

Morgunbladid, Iceland's main newspaper, said the leaders would meet twice on Saturday and again Sunday morning

A French consul built the Hofdi in 1909, with timber and design imported from Norway Later the British diplomatic mission owned it

Guests have included Britain's Winston Churchill and actress Marlene Dietrich

In 1952, the British head of mission of the time, John Greenway, obtained permission from London to sell the house on the grounds that it was haunted

"He told them he couldn't sleep for noises and bumps in the night and convinced them it was haunted and should be sold," said Brian Holt, who was a consular assistant at the time

Holt who lives in retirement in Reykjavik, said he attended many functions at the house since 'and I was never aware of anything unusual'

He said the ghost was thought to be of a young woman whose body was found washed ashore near the house

Eldon joked "The Iceland Foreign Ministry does not say the house isn't haunted We neither confirm nor deny it"

In 1958, geothermal wells were found under the house, one possible cause of Greenway's bumps in the night and the city bought the site

No one lives in the Hofdi and it serves as the mayor's banquet hall It contains comfortable furniture a pine paneled interior and prized works of Icelandic art

Ushering in home entertainment nirvana

By CHRIS SATULLO

Any day now, my VCR is going to free me from the inconvenience of network television schedules, the annoyance of commercials, the aggravation of movie theater ticket lines, the disappointment of stale popcorn and rock-hard Juju Fruits — in short, usher me into home entertainment nirvana.

Any day now — if I can get the blasted thing to work.

Let me make one thing clear right from the top - I didn't want this video cassette recorder.

Like the Luddites who roamed England in the 1800s smashing textile machines, I'm suspicious and fearful of any new-fangled technology.

Like wild animals, machines smell my fear and revel in it. They relish hiding my mechanical disability up to ridicule. Anytime I approach one with a screwdriver, I can hear it snickering in glee, calling to its fellows around the room, "Hey, guys! The dumb bunny is actually going to try something! Watch this."

So the last thing I wanted lying in wait in my living room was a piece of machinery which even salesmen admit can be crotchety.

But then Timmy called.

Tim is my brother-in law; he's a poobah with a major department-store chain. For a gadget lover like him, to work all day amidst shelves of glittering high-tech goodies is a temptation not even St. Anthony could resist. Among his treasures, he has a VCR. He decided I should, too.

So, one day the phone rang at work. It was Tim, telling me that his store was closing out last year's VCR models at a tremendous discount.

He extolled the virtues of the machine at length. According to Tim, this VCR could do just about anything short of projecting a hologram of the Second Coming into your living room.

Well, I thought to myself, with a young child at home we don't get out to the movies as much as I'd like. And the "Bill Cosby Show" always seems to hit at the baby's bath time. And it did sound like a bargain. I bit.

A few days later, the evil item arrived in our home. Tim generously offered to help hook it up. The contraption had us mystified for the better part of an afternoon until we got it working, more or less. The first thing it ever taped was a Mr. T cartoon (just as a test, honest); apparently, the machine considered that an indignity for which I would have to pay.

All was well for a while. In fact, my wife and I actually rented a few movies on cassettes and enjoyed watching them.

Then came the VCR's first big test, taping a football game of my beloved Cleveland Browns while I was away. The Browns came from behind to win, but the VCR apparently found a movie - "Sinbad the Sailor Meets Gidget" I believe it was - to record instead. As we were huddled over the set, I heard him mutter, "Uh-oh." When hooking up the VCR at his parents, he'd flipped a switch to accommodate their cable-ready set. He flipped it back and snow was driven from the picture.

This lasted a few weeks, until Tim's next visit. As we were huddled over the set, I heard him mutter, "Uh-oh." When hooking up the VCR at his parents, he'd flipped a switch to accommodate their cable-ready set. He flipped it back and snow was driven from the picture.

Then came the Sara incident. With whispered inducements, the VCR lured my 2-year-old daughter over and said, "Here, shove this piece of highly tearable plastic into this hole here." Sara, dutiful girl that she is, complied, putting a plastic thing-a-magig into the slot where the tapes go.

I believe I heard the VCR smack its lips in satisfaction after it ate the next videotape I tried to insert.

A nice repair bill later, the VCR returned to its perch beneath the television, but only briefly. My in-laws wanted to use the recorder at a holiday party, so, dutiful son-in-law that I am, I unhooked the spaghetti of wires linking TV and VCR and lugged it over to their house.

When I got the machine back, something was terribly wrong. Fiddle and curse as I might, the TV picture looked as though it had been transmitted from Tierra del Fuego in a thunderstorm.

Then I obtained from the cable company the little switch and the three barrels full of wires that would enable me to cure the quirk. The hand-drawn instruction sheet had all the clarity of the Rosetta Stone, but, by God, I deciphered it and hooked the switch up correctly. Like Willie [illegible], my VCR never actually taped one show and watched another, but knowing that I could gave me a warm glow.

Clouds soon darkened my sunny mood, however. I tired of the skimpy channel menu and poor service of my cable company and switched to its competitor.

The new company's service man offered to hook the cable up to the VCR, but he apparently belonged to the vast ranks of the VCR-impaired. His intervention worked like many a government program - it left things more screwed up than they'd been before.

I had cable reception, but I couldn't tape anything or watch a rented cassette.

With some fiddling, I've repaired the situation to this point: I can watch regular cable fine. If I turn on the VCR, I lose picture but not sound. By turning the channel on my TV set, which you're not supposed to have to do with the cable converter box, I can get a picture, but only in black and white. If I try to tape that picture, it tapes in color.

VCR heaven was in reach, but I was still dissatisfied. You can't have your cake and eat it too when you have both a VCR and a cable converter box. Under one possible hookup, you can watch one show and tape another, but only on some channels. Other channels you can't tape at all. If you use the hookup that allows you to tape all channels, you can't watch one and tape another.

This quirk drove me mad, though I could think of maybe one occasion when I would have wanted to tape one show and watch another.

So I obtained from the cable company the little switch and the three barrels full of wires that would enable me to cure the quirk. The hand-drawn instruction sheet had all the clarity of the Rosetta Stone, but, by God, I deciphered it and hooked the switch up correctly. Like Willie [illegible], my VCR never actually taped one show and watched another, but knowing that I could gave me a warm glow.

I've stuck with it for a long time. I'm not going to fiddle with my VCR anymore, but I decide to show nothing on the TV screen except the blasted Mr. T cartoon that ticked it off in the first place.

We disagree with assessment

THREE MEMBERS OF UNITED Steelworkers of America took the Monessen Chamber of Commerce and this newspaper to task last week because they felt the "right questions" were not asked of John P. (Jack) Frye, president of Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp., after his address at the Chamber's annual banquet.

Ernie Reppert, Local 1229 president; John Cheroki, vice president; and John Demko, committeeman expressed their criticism in a Page One news story and a letter to the editor.

The local union officials feel questions concerning the future of Wheeling-Pittsburgh's Monessen facilities were not asked.

"The business and political leaders of Monessen had an opening and they didn't take it," said Reppert. "They had an opportunity to find out the future for Monessen, to get some commitment for Monessen. This man was willing to respond to their questions."

We disagree with this assessment. We feel Mr. Frye was very candid in his evaluation of Wheeling-Pittsburgh's plight in Monessen and Allenport and in talking about the company's future in these two Valley communities.

Perhaps all the questions weren't asked that could have been, but as far as we know these three leaders of Local 1229 were not there to ask any questions, either. The banquet was open to anyone in the community to attend and was well advertised in advance.

Not all are free

WHEN REPORTER NICHOLAS Daniloff was released — presumably with a clean bill — by his Moscow acquaintances, the entire nation rejoiced, as well it should have.

But joy is not the only emotion we should be experiencing.

For one thing, why did it all happen in the first place? Were we really made pawns in another giant game of brinksmanship by the Soviet leadership, punished for daring to arrest one of their own and charge him with espionage?

For another, those kidnapped Americans in Lebanon who protest loudly that they're forgotten while the nation gets worked up over Nicholas Daniloff — well, they have a good point.

We're glad Daniloff is home safe, whatever the reasons behind his harrassment.

But shouldn't we make the same valiant effort to rescue those other "kidnapped" Americans?

Or did we use all of our trade goods on Daniloff?

Rate misleading

THE STATE OFFICE of Employment Security last Friday released the unemployment rate for August in the Pittsburgh Labor Market, which includes the Mid-Mon Valley area.

The report said the jobless rate for the four-county labor market (Allegheny, Fayette, Washington and Westmoreland) was up five-tenths of a point to eight percent in August, but nine-tenths of a point below the same period a year ago. The August rate is above the national rate for August, which was listed at seven percent.

Once again we question these figures because they don't take into account those jobless workers who no longer are receiving unemployment compensation. Many of these people are now on the welfare roles and no longer counted in compiling unemployment figures.

What Do You Think?

Comments on fall festival

By MICHAEL R. BONN

Has it ever occurred to anyone that Charleroi, the "Magic City," is somehow different from other valley towns?

Except for the 60's, which were spent on the east coast for employment reasons, I have lived all of my life here in the mid-Mon Valley. I basically grew up in Charleroi, and still live in the Charleroi area, Dunlevy to be exact.

Upon returning to the area in the early 70's, I felt that Charleroi had changed. It's character also was somehow different. I have had extreme difficulty analyzing what that difference may be. One thing for sure, only Charleroi has changed, the other valley towns have remained the same.

Certainly the change is not in the people, since the average person in any valley community, including Charleroi, is basically the same. They are hard working, energetic, ethnic, athletic, patriotic and compassionate. The school systems appear equal, housing is relatively identical, and the standard of living compares evenly. What then makes Charleroi different?

Recently I attended the Charleroi Fall Festival, where and when the answer was suddenly and emphatically revealed to me. In touring the many food booths and flea tables, I realized then, that before my very eyes, was the answer. You see, nowhere in sight was a booth or table sponsored by a non-profit organization such as the Salvation Army, Cougar Boosters, or the Charleroi P.T.A.! All the booths were managed by merchants of Charleroi, for personal or corporate profit! Now don't get me wrong, I'm not criticizing the merchants or the quality of their products. I'm merely saying that if I want pizza, I can go to one of the many pizza parlors in Charleroi anytime and eat my fill. The pizza parlors, as well as the other Charleroi merchants have permanent establishments that are open to the public year round. The non-profit organizations, which exist on donations to help the poor and unemployed, do not! In these times of high unemployment, plant closings and suicides, who needs free public space the most? The merchants or the needy?

I'm deeply saddened, knowing that the Charleroi Food Bank, which feeds the poor, could have benefited from the festival had space been made available. Why weren't the Charleroi Lions there selling brooms for the blind? These groups, as well as other worthy non-profit organizations could and should have gained funding and public support from a festival called the Charleroi Fall Festival! After all, aren't the Charleroi Wildcats and the Charleroi Band Boosters a part of Charleroi? Is Charleroi just composed of merchants?

Fact is, the Charleroi Fall Festival was sponsored by the Charleroi Chamber of Commerce, which saw to it that their members would gain financially from the festival, and that, I believe, is the difference between Charleroi and the rest of the valley towns! Whereas the leadership around the Valley is in the elected officials, who work closely with the people, the lead in Charleroi often is taken by the Chamber, which does not represent all the people. In other words, Charleroi is run by the Charleroi Chamber of Commerce!

Let's look at the difference. When one visits the Monessen Cultural Heritage Festival, you see booths that are aiding local churches, fire companies, and youth groups. In Dunlevy, the annual picnic supports the borough Recreation Center. I could go on and on, but you get the picture by now.

My point is, the festival was not called the "Charleroi Chamber of Commerce Fall Festival!" It was called the "Charleroi Fall Festival," which implies that the festival was community sponsored.

Oh well, the rich get richer, and the poor get poorer!

Maybe a real Charleroi Fall Festival can be organized(?). One to include all the people.

Or—perhaps the name of Charleroi could be changed(?) to Chambersberg!!!

Justice halts investigation

By JACK ANDERSON
and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department quietly killed an FBI investigation of a federal official because it would damage her credibility as the star witness in a civil suit the department was defending.

The official is Kathleen Peroff, a former project director at the Housing and Urban Development Department. She was in charge of the controversial 1984 study that claimed there were only 350,000 homeless people in the country. We broke the story that the study's methodology was questionable and the estimate far too low.

The Community for Creative Non-Violence, a Washington-based advocacy group for the homeless, filed a civil suit against HUD to stop distribution of the report. The suit has yet to come to trial, with the Justice Department's civil division defending HUD's position — and Peroff as the government's star witness.

Meanwhile, CCNV filed charges with the Justice Department claiming that Peroff had committed perjury in testimony before Congress and in sworn depositions taken for the civil suit. The charges were eventually referred to Assistant Attorney General Harry R. Benner, chief of the department's trial and grand jury section.

An FBI agent was sent to interview Peroff. Shortly after that, Benner dropped the Peroff investigation. In an internal Justice Department memo we've obtained, he explained why.

Peroff "became very upset about being questioned by an FBI agent," Benner wrote. Then Benner was contacted by Royce Lamberth, the assistant attorney general of the civil division who was in charge of defending Peroff's study of the homeless against CCNV.

Lamberth told Benner the FBI investigation "was creating an appearance that we did not believe" Peroff, according to the memo. This would damage her credibility in the civil suit, the memo explained.

"Eventually, the message was relayed to me that the U.S. attorney did not want the author (Peroff) interviewed," Benner wrote. So he dropped the FBI investigation, which had been recommended by a subordinate who said the interview should be conducted even though there was no "evidence of criminality."

Suspecting something fishy, CCNV's attorney, Mark Venuti, asked for a court hearing on the possibility of collusion between the Justice Department's criminal and civil divisions. At the hearing, the government assured the three-judge panel that the Justice Department is "compartmentalized." It has "different divisions that look at civil suits as opposed to possibilities of criminal investigations," the government claimed.

The judges agreed, and pointed out that CCNV had failed to show that the decision to drop the Peroff investigation was "flawed or tainted." The judges might have ruled differently if they had known of Lamberth's intervention, as described in Benner's internal memo.

Reader notes appreciation

To the Editor:

I would like to express my appreciation to the many people who gave their assistance in helping the homecoming events at Charleroi be another success.

Many people were involved — the bon-fire crew who prepared for Friday's events, Mary Lou Lee and the cheerleaders for the snake dance and pep-rally, all participants including the Charleroi High and Peters Township bands in the parade, Carol Claybaugh and Dave DePiazza for their help in organizing the parade; all those who donated the use of their convertibles for the homecoming court; Mr. Bob Hodgson and the Charleroi football team for winning the game, my wife and Rose Falbo for organizing the dance at the Lower Level, and to Mrs. Ruth Corrin and Mr. Bob Turpak, the senior class sponsors. My thanks to these people in particular — and also the Charleroi Police and Fire Departments for all their assistance. I hope that next year will go as well.

Reader wants some action

To the Editor:

What is it going to take to do something about the traffic accidents and fatalities along Lincoln Avenue Extension in Charleroi? This stretch of road has been the scene of numerous accidents (One a month is not uncommon.) One accident, occurring just recently, was very serious.

The problem: Excessive speed. Cars pulling out of businesses and homes barely have a chance to make it onto the road safely, especially where there are bends.

The solution: Flashing lights, warning signs, more patrol cars, or speed traps. It is obvious that the 40 mph speed limit does not work.

I'm tired of local officials claiming this is a state-funded road and nothing can be done. We are all entitled to safety on our roads and I for one, want something done about it.

Vatican: U.S. seminaries OK except for some doubters

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Vatican, after five years of investigating America's Catholic seminaries, says the schools are doing well in training priests but are harboring too many doubters of 'church leaders' authority.

Confusion about the church's "magisterial authority ... is obviously a matter which needs emphatic clarification and redress" at the seminaries, declared Cardinal William Baum, head of the Vatican's Congregation for Catholic Education.

In a few cases, he said, seminary authorities had been told to take direct action — unspecified in the report — "to re-secure the magisterial integrity of the teaching of moral theology." But he added, "Dissent, in fact, is not a major characteristic" of the 38 seminaries studied.

The bulk of the report, which was released over the weekend, was positive, concluding that U.S. seminaries "are generally happy, wholesome and engaged, with seminarians who exhibit a great thirst for the spiritual life."

The investigation, ordered by Pope John Paul II, found the seminaries "generally satisfactory (and) serving the church well in preparing candidates for the priesthood," Baum said.

His comments were in the form of a 23-page letter to American bishops, some of whom had been uneasy about the investigation in light of Vatican criticism of perceived liberalism in the U.S. church in the past few years.

Obviously pleased with the results, Bishop James Malone of Youngstown, Ohio, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, said in an accompanying letter to fellow bishops:

"It is with considerable satisfaction that I am able to report to you that the Holy See's effort to 'take the pulse' of our seminaries has found it to be strong and vibrant."

On the negative side, Baum complained of too-common "confusion" about church authority, adding:

"There would seem to be a number of seminarians who, at the end of their moral theology courses, are either not sure of what the church teaches in a particular matter or who think that the church's teaching is only one theological opinion amongst a number of other equally valid theological opinions — in which case it is mistakenly denied its magisterial authority."

Baum's call for correction of such doubt or dissent was in line with widely publicized Vatican criticism of such prominent non-seminary U.S. Catholics as Catholic University professor Charles Curran — recently forbidden to continue teaching as a church theologian — and of two dozen nuns who signed a public statement declaring church leaders' condemnation of abortion was not the only legitimate position.

Pope in message to youth

LYON, France (AP) — Pope John Paul II called on the young Roman Catholic faithful of France to fight religious indifference and to join forces with youth from around the world against hate, intolerance and terrorism.

The pope continues his four-day tour of France today [illegible] homage to St. Jean-Marie Vianney, a 19th-century country clergyman considered by the pontiff to be the model for the world's parish priests.

The morning begins with a brief stop at the house outside Lyon where the saint was born to a peasant family on May 8, 1786, then the pope travels to Ars where the clergyman spent 41 years as a priest and developed a wide following.

On Sunday, the second day of his pilgrimage to southeastern France, the pope visited an ecumenical monastery at Taize, said Mass in Paray-Le-Monial, and met with young people who packed Lyon's 50,000-seat Gerland Stadium.

There, he urged young people to fight religious indifference and to join forces with youth from around the world to combat the evils of hate, intolerance and "blind terrorism."

As he entered the stadium in an open vehicle, the pontiff was greeted by wild cheering. Speaking to the gathering on three occasions, with interrupted repeatedly by cheers from the crowd.

John Paul appeared moved by the enthusiasm of his audience, smiling frequently and seeming to draw strength from its cheering.

Young people, he said, should not bear the weight of the world's ills, but he said they do have a responsibility to help solve them

"Denounce without fear that which is hard, violent, hateful or morally weak," he said, urging the crowd to combat "intolerance, racism, torture, prostitution, drugs and the temptations of despair, delinquency, abortion ... and blind terrorism without pity."

Diet Pill System Sweeping U.S.

Super Dream Pill
Guaranteed Weight Loss

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH — An amazing new super Dream Pill System has recently been perfected that guarantees rapid weight loss. Best of all, it allows you to eat your favorite foods while losing weight from the very first day until you achieve your ideal weight and figure.

The Dream Pill System features the extraordinary Dream Pill. The Dream Pill combines natural substances L-arginine, L-lysine and L-ornithine which can stimulate the body's production of growth hormone. Dr. Robert Harris, a specialist in nutritional medicine was recently quoted as explaining: "Growth Hormone may be what's responsible for allowing teenagers to down thousands of calories in hamburgers and other foods and still be thin as a rail."

"Growth Hormone is present in people up through the teenage years, then slowly diminishes with age. But L-arginine and L-ornithine make the body 'think' it belongs to a teenager again, allowing adults to eat as much as they want — and still be thin and wiry."

Life Extension Authors Confirm Results

Durk Pearson and Sandy Shaw, graduates of MIT and UCLA respectively, introduced these miracle enhancers to the public in their runaway best selling book, Life Extension. They discovered the weight-loss effects by accident. Sandy fell and broke her foot and started taking L-arginine because of its well-known healing qualities. Much to her amazement Sandy lost 25 pounds of fat and put on 5 pounds of firm-toned muscle in six weeks. According to Durk's calculations, the pill caused Sandy to lose 400 times as much fat as she would otherwise have lost — without dieting!

Extraordinary Guarantee

Place your order now. If you are not completely satisfied with the thinner "new you" simply return the empty container within 45 days for a full refund of your entire purchase price. No questions asked. Now what could be fairer than that?

Musical to fight youth addiction

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A hospital and theater company have teamed up to fight adolescent addiction, and teen-agers, parents and teachers are applauding their efforts.

More than 450 people, many of them younger than 18, gathered at the Roman Catholic Diocese of Pittsburgh's Synod Hall on Saturday for the premiere of "Finally Fourteen," a musical drama aimed at junior high school students.

"I think it can help a lot," said Lynn Macaulay, 17. "More people would listen to this than someone coming in to talk. A speaker would be boring."

"Most every kid these days is drinking," said Jermaine James, 17, who called theater "the best way" to stop the trend. "It's real characters and they'll think about it."

The production was the third anti-addiction play that St. Francis Medical Center and Saltworks young audiences.

"I can't think of a better way to get to this population," said Michael Flaherty, director of St. Francis' chemical dependency program. "They're tired of the lectures, but they're not tired of the plays."

Written by Pittsburgh playwright Gillette Elvgren, "Finally Fourteen" tells the story of a 14-year-old girl who uses alcohol and drugs to impress the "in" crowd when she moves to a new neighborhood. She becomes addicted, goes through rehabilitation and finally learns to say no.

"They're talking what is really is and letting people know about it, people who would only find out the hard way," said John Schwoebel, 44, an assistant high school principal who attended the premiere with his wife and their two sons.

"It's not only about drugs, but just problems that families and young adults have, seeing that there is somebody who cares and there's a way to get help," he said.

St. Francis and Saltworks were hoping to spotlight addiction as well as other adolescent and parental problems when they joined forces in 1983 to produce Elvgren's "I Am The Brother of Dragons" for senior high

The play, which takes its name from the biblical book of Job, faced initial opposition.

"When we began, people were pretty enraged that it (the drug problem) was even being talked about in their communities," recalled Kate McConnell, artistic director for Saltworks. "The denial was there."

Within a few months, though, Saltworks was swamped with requests to perform at schools and churches, and Elvgren was asked to write a play for elementary students. The result was "Say No, Max," which premiered in 1984.

"They (plays) don't talk down to the kids, they don't lecture the kids and they don't provide any kind of one-two-three solution," Elvgren said. "What they do, though, is raise the visibility and the horizon of these kids."

Saltworks, a division of the Christian Arts Company in Pittsburgh, currently stages about 300 performances a year throughout the East Coast. St. Francis helps underwrite the expenses.

So far, only two other acting troupes have the rights to the shows. In each instance, the cast has gone through rehabilitation programs for firsthand experience.

"We're not counselors by any means," said Saltworks actress Tammie McKenzie, 28, the star of "Finally Fourteen." "Our job is to plant the seed, make people aware there's a problem."

Saltworks regularly receives letters from youngsters deeply affected by the plays. The cast also is beset with questions following each show, including some from young addicts seeking help.

"Kids come up to us and are really looking for advice," Ms. McKenzie said, smiling. "That has convinced me that what we're doing has validity."

Announcing a wonder rate on loans for homeowners.

5.9%*

After all the money you've invested in your home, Mellon Bank has come up with a great way for your home to pay you back at an astonishing rate.

It's the Mellon Home Equity Personal Credit Line at a mere 5.9 Annual Percentage Rate. The rate will be guaranteed for 90 days from the date your account is opened.

With a low 5.9% Mellon Home Equity Personal Credit Line you can write loans when you need them just by writing checks on your credit line account. So when you need to borrow for home improvements, college, a new car or anything that's important to you, the money is ready and waiting.

You can even use your low-rate credit line to consolidate all your other loans and then make one low payment instead of many. But whatever you use your credit line for, you only pay interest on the amount you borrow.

But don't wait. This offer is good for a limited time only.

To take advantage of this special offer or for more information, visit any Mellon office, call Mellon at 255-6522 in Pittsburgh or 1-800-255-6522 outside Pittsburgh, or fill in the coupon and mail it to us.

With a Mellon Personal Credit Line you spend less time borrowing money and more time enjoying it. That, after all, is what quality banking is all about.

Little leopard born in Rostraver

By EMMA JENE LELIK
Family News Editor

"Li'l VICTOR E. LEP arrived in Rostraver Twp. just in time for the current football season. Born of the imagination of a talented Rostraver woman, Cynthia Whited, the little leopard cub was designed originally to help the Belle Vernon Parents Association raise some much needed funds.

"We were discussing ways of making money and I asked if anyone had ever made a little leopard," Cynthia said.

The leopard is the Belle Vernon Area school mascot for all their sports teams.

It was a natural thought for Cynthia who has been designing toys, particularly plush animals, for the past couple of years.

Some of her designs have been accepted and will be on the market for the 1987 Christmas season. "They are waiting to be patented," she explained.

WITH THE BACKING of the Parents Association, Cynthia created a newborn leopard cub she dubbed "Li'l Victor E. Lep." He was given away during the home varsity football game on September 26.

Two identical cubs will be given away at forthcoming games, one on October 18 and another on October 24.

The little fellow, who "sits 10 inches high," is a fuzzy, newborn, his creator explained. "He has a variegated fur in tan and white which is natural for newborn leopards," she stated. "The babies are more fuzzy than spotted, the spots becoming more defined as the animal matures."

CYNTHIA BUBBLES with enthusiasm when she talks about the little leopard.

"I love designing toys," she remarked. "I really am an animal lover...and when I see the children's eyes light up as they look at them, it makes it all worthwhile!"

Li'l Victor E. Lep holds a sports pendant in his right hand. He has a BVA marked bib around his neck. "Why the bib?" I asked Cynthia. "Because he's a newborn," she responded.

Each leopard is hand-crafted, explained. "I sculpture each face myself, put the little freckles on and so forth. It's done with lots of love!"

SHE HAS DECIDED to continue making the leopard cubs as an ongoing project. "A portion of every sale will go toward sports at Belle Vernon Area," she said of the animal that represents the [illegible] in the Rostraver School District.

She may be contacted by phone at 929-2088 by anyone desiring more information.

She follows toy safety regulations. Many of the toys she creates are washable. "At least surface wipable," she adds.

Cynthia has a plan to make other animals "with healthy, moral stories behind them." I should explain at this point that Cynthia is also a part-time writer.

"I compose stories and design animals that are related," she said.

ONE STORY she has in mind is about "The Heavenly Hedgehogs, Heath and Heather." Naturally, there will be two angelic little hedgehogs (really??) to go with this one. Trust Cynthia. They'll be cute!

She calls her little business "Seek 'n Find Toys."

The Whiteds moved to Rostraver from Ohio when their husband and father, Edward (Ted), was transferred by the P & LE Railroad. There are three children: Scott, 23, who is serving in the U.S. Navy; Tim, 21, working in Pittsburgh, and Jason, 16, a sophomore at Belle Vernon Area where he also participates in sports.

Loneliness isn't easy

By EMILY WILKENS

A recent column on coping with the loss of a husband or wife brought a flood of letters. Some of them from readers who haven't recovered from the loss, others from readers who have made an adjustment.

Dear Emily: Your inspiring articles are full of wisdom, especially the one on coping with loneliness.

The loss of a husband of 49 years was the most traumatic shock I ever experienced. The transition was unbearable. I had never shouldered responsibility. I could not adjust or make decisions. I lost all interest and wished I could find some inner-strength to push me forward.

It's been almost three years and now I try to read my daily newspaper and cope with my problems. I only wish I could join a widow's club but there isn't one in our town. I need someone to talk to.

I'm in my 70s and uncertain about everything in life. I often wonder why husbands die before their wives. When does one emerge from sorrow and grief?

My one salvation is a loose-leaf binder in which I write to my husband every day. It seems a way to have a silent conversation with him. I tell him about the news, household needs and repairs (they never cease) and how much I miss him. It is good therapy for me.

I hope all happy couples will remember that every second they spend together is a gift from God to cherish. — Mrs. Thomas G. Doyle.

ALONE AND LONELY

Dear Emily: I'm 80 and lost my dear wife three years ago. I find it very hard coping with the lonely life. I'm really trying hard to make the best of it but I'm afraid I'm losing the battle. At times I feel so very alone. So many things bring back memories I have no desire to go anywhere. I take care of myself and my blind dog, who is 14 years old, cut my own grass, clean my own house, do cooking and shopping.

I need something to take me out of this depression and feeling so alone. — Thomas Galardi

These two readers still mourn their loss but recovery takes time, often several years. The fact that each is managing a daily routine helps. The next step is to find interests outside of the house. Here are letters from readers who are finding their way following the loss of a life partner.

MEETING A CHALLENGE

Dear Emily: I have been a widow for 10 years and, before that, separated from my husband for 10 years, so that's 20 years of going it alone. I've learned to cope and adjust to that way of life and I've accepted it.

Loneliness was sort of a challenge to me. I would not let it take charge of me. Deep down inside, we're all lonely and yearning for something. To my surprise, even loved ones cannot seem to fulfill this void, so I did the most natural thing and turned to prayer.

I cried a lot until I learned to turn to God and that's how I survived all these years. — Ann Jordan

ACTIVE AND BUSY

Dear Emily: Here's how I've coped with the loneliness of the past 14 years.

I consider myself lucky because I've survived serious surgery. I take college courses for senior citizens to keep my mind alert and to preserve my good sense of humor and meet people. I enjoy the opera and art museums and am not too concerned if I have to go alone.

I wanted to learn to play the piano, so I rented one for a year and really had fun. I have a few good friends and accept invitations. I like to cook and often entertain. Every morning I walk two miles. I take pride in my appearance and do volunteer work at a nursing home and a heart association.

Even so, one gets tired of being a loner and seeks companionship. We need affection and to feel needed. — Billi Schostal

Please Call Police banners — A project where everyone wins

When Mildred Braden had car trouble on Interstate 75 in Ohio, she could have done what most stranded motorists would — raise the hood, risk accepting help from a stranger or wait for the police, possibly for hours.

But in Ms. Braden's case, an officer arrived within 20 minutes. The difference was that she posted a "Please Call Police" banner in her rear window.

"Police arrived advising me they had a call that I was broken down," Ms. Braden recalls. "What a comforting thing for a recent widow traveling alone to have available."

Ms. Braden is just one of more than 1,000,000 people throughout the U.S. who have the three-foot banner which displays its "Please Call Police" message in large red fluorescent letters.

The banner, which attaches to a vehicle's front or rear window, has also had other impressive endorsements from around the country.

In her nationally syndicated "Dear Abby" column, Abigail Van Buren recommended the banners as "lifesavers."

Oklahoma Gov. George Nigh endorsed them for the second year when he declared May 18-24 "Please Call Police Banner Week" throughout his state.

Portland, Ore. Police Chief Penny Harrington, the first woman to hold that post in a major U.S. city, emphasized the banners in an article she wrote for McCall's Magazine.

The project is the brainchild of Calvin Vogt of Lafayette, California. The banners are available through his organization, We Are Against Assault and Rape (WAAAR).

Vogt designed the banner 10 years ago after three incidents when female friends, stranded in their cars, were assaulted by men who supposedly stopped to help them — all within two months.

"I started thinking about all the other people who must have found themselves in similar situations," Vogt recalls. "It seemed as if there weren't many options for them. They could either get out and walk, risk accepting help from a potentially dangerous stranger or stay locked in their cars for hours until police arrived."

Vogt says he knew that none of those alternatives was desirable, particularly for women and senior citizens traveling alone.

He decided a banner urging passing motorists to summon police would speed the arrival of safe help while scaring off potential assailants.

But as worthwhile as his idea seemed, Vogt had difficulty convincing someone to help market it.

"I went to several major corporations, including oil companies and an insurance company," he recalls. "They all thought it was a good idea but rejected it for various reasons.

"The fellow from the insurance company thought it had too many negative aspects to it. But then he turned around and asked for one for his wife," he adds with a chuckle.

Vogt then decided to offer his idea to anti-rape groups for marketing.

"While they have a vested interest in helping women protect themselves, they're also typically low on funds," he explains. "I decided they could sell the banners and use the money to keep going."

Vogt says that although sales have exceeded a million signals his goal is for every woman and senior citizen's car in the country to have a Please Call Police banner.

"The odds are that we're all going to be stranded somewhere sometime," Vogt says. He points to statistics from the Automobile Club of America which reports that in one year it received 16.8 million calls for road assistance from among its 24 million members. In Los Angeles alone, more than 50,000 people each month use freeway call boxes to summon help.

He adds that one large California anti-rape group raised $200,000 by selling the banners.

Vogt himself was recently among those stranded motorists when he found himself unable to fix a blow-out on a busy Southern California freeway. He put up his banner and a police cruiser stopped in less than 10 minutes to call for help, he recalls.

"My greatest pleasure is in knowing that the banners have saved people around the country from robbery, rape and murder while providing essential income to literally hundreds of worthwhile organizations. In addition, the banners are assembled and package by handicapped people," Says Vogt, "It's an everybody-wins project!"

More information about the Please Call Police Banner may be obtained by calling (415) 283-1373 or by writing to WAAAR at P.O. Box 94, Lafayette, Calif., 94549.

At Wits End

From real life to big screen

By ERMA BOMBECK

For years, art has imitated life Then it began getting closer and closer to reality and if it weren't for Steven Spielberg I wouldn't be able to escape at all

Real-life drama anymore goes right from the headlines to the big screen and is no more than a limo drive away Within days after the 13-year-old girl from California turned in her parents for alleged drug use, nine major production companies wanted to acquire rights to her story

Two Russian dissidents who came to this country captured the imagination of so many writers they ended up getting an agent to handle all the offers

[illegible] against time to bring out the "definite story" of two Utah boys who killed their grandfather at the urging of their mother

Where are many of tomorrow's writers coming from? Most of them are men and women serving time It used to be when people were hauled into court or sentenced to prison, they shouted "Get me a lawyer" [illegible] "Get me an agent!" This we have tomes by John DeLorean and Jean Harris (There are advantages to reading the grueling confessions of [illegible] dure the grueling confessions of [illegible]

Forget creative writing classes If you're the son or daughter of a celebrity, there's a "Dearest" book in your future If that isn't possible, work for someone in power and then split and sing like a canary Read [illegible] news for sensational divorces, kinky murders, justice on the subway, triumph over adversity, foreclosures on farms and of course the big three sex, violence and Nazis

A creative writing teacher in the West recently gave her class an assignment to pick out a want ad and create a story around it They were quite good [illegible] on a "LIKE-NEW PIANO FOR SALE" had the makings of a six-part miniseries starring Jaclyn Smith and George C Scott

I've been watching a lot of Misery with credits and frankly my body can't absorb any more How I hunger for the old Westerns where men were men and women wore cross your heart bras and the Indians had vaccinations under their armbands How I yearn for the old musicals where a man and woman sat on a park bench and suddenly a 60 piece orchestra came out of the trees in time for the love song And the absurdity of a funny man with glasses who found himself dangling from the hands of a clock 20 stories above the traffic

Anyone planning an escape? Take me with you

Need to develop outside interests

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Parents need to continually expand their world of interests and acquaintances simply to keep from getting into a rut and to fight boredom

Some parents put so much time and energy into their family, home and rearing young children, that their world becomes very limited. They forget to do something for themselves

The result is they become bored Once bored, it is easy for them to become resentful and assume the martyr role They feel sorry for themselves and often become irritable Life in the family can become miserable

One solution to this problem is to meet new people by getting involved in some activity out of the home Immediately, I can almost hear the cries from parents who are over worked either by the continual press of work at home or by that and a job [illegible]

If you found yourself questioning "where in the world" you would find time to do anything else, I encourage you to think again about this subject Give yourself a break and at least examine whether you are spending all your energies on your family

One mother I spoke to several years ago would not even entertain [illegible] She strongly defended how busy she was and politely told me that when she had time left over, she would think about it

Two months later she telephoned to say she had reluctantly thought about it and, yes she did need to get out of the house and get involved This mother finally scheduled time each week to drive an elderly person to the grocery store

It's made a world of difference in my life and I no longer find myself feeling trapped by the amount of work" she told me

In the past, mothers with small children were thought to be the primary victims of this feeling of being trapped. Today, more and more men and working mothers are recognizing that they too need some outside interest The outside interests actually help promote better family relationships

Every person has the need for recognition, support, understanding acceptance, challenge and productivity More relationships mean greater opportunities to fulfill these needs

Many find meeting new people simple Others find it frightening Still others have to arrange their lives to allow for the meeting of new people Families have to make some adjustments so Mom or Dad get out and "do their thing"

— Here are a few suggestions for meeting people

— Take a class in a subject that interests you It may be the local cooperative extension service which offers a workshop or course Such a course need not be taken for credit Take it for enrichment and because it interests you

— Volunteer to work at a hospital, school, library or other community program

— Develop an interest in other people Learn to comment on their helpfulness, dress, office, home or personality People become interested in a person when that person shows an interest in them

— Offer to care for someone's child even if it is on a very temporary basis Or help an older person with grocery shopping or laundry

— Go places where there are people who are in the mood to have some fun Look to recreation or community centers or your church These are good places to meet people

— Learn to go places alone

— Choose people you would like to meet, then introduce yourself The greatest way to make friends is to be a friendly person

Reagans sorry for disrupting wedding in park

SANTA BARBARA, Calif (AP) — President Reagan and his wife, Nancy, apologized to a couple whose wedding was interrupted when the presidential helicopter landed in a city park.

Brett and Debbie Brumfield returned from their honeymoon last week to find a letter mailed from Rancho del Cielo, Reagan's Western White House in the Santa Ynez Mountains

Nancy and I were so sorry to learn that our helicopter trip and all the arrangements that went with it interfered with a most special occasion in your life, your wedding ceremony in Las Positas Park the letter said We both want you to know how much we regret that — and how very much we wish you a happy blessed and loving married life together"

Firemen offer safety hints in Charleroi

[illegible] Fire Prevention Week (Oct. 6-11), Charleroi Volunteer Fire Department is presenting a series of safety tips.

Today, the Charleroi group is urging residents to "wake up to your smoke detectors so they can wake you up."

The firemen say residents should have a smoke detector on each level of their home, then test each one each month. They suggest using the test-button and candle-smoke methods for testing, and remind residents to replace the batteries once a year.

"Remember," said a spokesman for the fire department, "a sleeping smoke alarm cannot save your life, but a wide awake alarm lets you sleep ... fire safe."

Several charges

DONORA — Yvonne Bashur, 37, of Donora, was cited for disorderly conduct, criminal mischief and harassment by Donora Police on Sunday at 9:30 p.m. in the parking lot of First Federal Savings and Loan, Sixth Street and Meldon Avenue.

COSTLY FUMBLE - Cleveland defenders Chris Rockins (37) and Eddie Johnson (51) go after fumble by Pittsburgh quarterback Mark Malone (16), on ground, that ended the final Steeler drive in the closing minutes. The Steelers suffered their first loss ever to the Browns at Three Rivers Stadium, 27-24.

This mud's for EF over BV Area, 14-7

By JEFF OLIVER

If ever a coach had an excuse for a losing game, it was Belle Vernon Area's Bill Connors.

But he refused to use it

Playing on a field more suitable as a playground for a group of mud-loving pigs or the ladies' mud wrestling championship of the world, the Leps dropped a 14-7 decision to host Elizabeth Forward Saturday afternoon.

How muddy was the playing surface at Elizabeth's Midway through the first quarter, it was virtually impossible to tell which running back was carrying the ball because they were all covered from head to toe with mud. By the second half if it wasn't for the fact that [illegible] wore different colored helmets, you couldn't have told which team was which

But after the game, Connors would not allow the field to shoulder the blame for his team dropping to 3-2 in the Big 10 Conference while the Warriors moved to 4-1

"The field was the same for them as it was for us," he said with a smile afterward. "I don't make any excuses for losing. They beat us. We had our chances and opportunities but they made the big plays against us.

"Elizabeth played a good game. Give them credit."

One of the big plays the Warriors pulled off came on their second snap of the game when quarterback Jeff Mattis hit running back Ed Kelley over the middle for a short pass and Kelley ran 70 yards before being pulled down on the Lep one-yard line. That play set up the game's first score, a one-yard sneak by Mattis.

"We just put that one in for Belle Vernon," said a happy EF coach Dick Fields after the game. "We felt we could throw that pass because of their defense. They played a man in the middle and everywhere Kelly Rush (the Warriors' 6-4, 215-pound sophomore fullback) went, he went with him. So we threw over the middle to our other little back

"It was a play that, if we used, we had to use it early or not at all."

The big play marked the Warriors' only pass completion of the afternoon. In fact, Mattis only threw three passes the entire day. On the other side of the field, Lep quarterback Greg Steeber didn't attempt a pass until the final 90 seconds of the contest because of the conditions.

The Leps tied the game four minutes into the second quarter when Marc Casciani swept left end, broke a couple tackles near the line of scrimmage and then squished and squashed his way 56 yards for a touchdown.

On the Leps' next possession, they had a chance to take the lead when Jim Cicchini, taking a pitch from Steeber, pulled up and hit Casciani for a 33-yard gain to the EF 24. However, on the next play, Casciani fumbled and the Warriors recovered.

In the second half, neither offense seemed able to overcome the muddy conditions as the Leps only managed one first down, while the Warriors had four. However, the hosts received the big break they needed with seven minutes left in the game when Belle Vernon's Fred Johnson tumbled the ball on the Lep 35 and EF's Rush pounced on it.

Four plays later, Rush took a pitch around right end and bolted untouched 29 yards for the winning touchdown. Rush, who was held to five yards rushing in the first three quarters, picked up 61 yards on seven carries in the last eight minutes, proving to be the only "mudder" on either team

While both teams went into the game with 3-1 records, Fields said that his Warriors were seeking only respect. He got more than that.

"I think now we got a little respect," he smiled. "We're not a veteran team. We only have two starters back and we use two sophomores as running backs and a junior at quarterback. (The win) gives some confidence to the kids who, for two games got their butts beat. A game like this gives us the confidence to know that we can win."

But the Warriors, who are the conference's defending champs, have the meat of their schedule remaining with games against Steel Valley, Uniontown, Trinity and Brownsville. Fields is aware of that.

"We're not talking playoffs here. We're talking about playing every game and being respectable. And, at the end, if we're there, we're there," he said.

What jinx?

Browns top Steelers

PITTSBURGH (AP) — After 17 years, six head coaches and a half-dozen starting quarterbacks, the Cleveland Browns finally have discovered the secret to winning in Pittsburgh.

"I think we'll all float back to Cleveland," veteran tight end Ozzie Newsome said Sunday after the Browns defeated the Steelers 27-24, their first victory in Pittsburgh since Three Rivers Stadium opened in 1970.

"Jinx? What jinx?" asked Gerald "Ice Cube" McNeil, whose 100-yard kickoff return was his second long-distance scoring play in as many weeks.

The Browns, who often have played well enough to win in Pittsburgh only to lose in a variety of bizarre ways, easily could have lost this game, too. They committed three turnovers, all of which led to Steelers' touchdowns, missed a 19-yard chip-shot field goal try and managed only 90 rushing yards on 30 carries.

Instead of losing, as they had every year since 1969, they won. They did it, the Browns said, not by worrying about the past but by concentrating on the present.

"We weren't thinking about the last 16 years or five years ago," said linebacker Chip Banks. "We were thinking about today, that we needed to win to put two wins back to back."

"Pittsburgh fans and Cleveland fans talked about the streak, but for us, it was just another big game against a divisional opponent," said quarterback Bernie Kosar. "It was a pivotal game for us."

In a mistake-filled game in which all seven turnovers were a factor in the outcome, the Steelers made one error too many. Leading 24-20 in the fourth quarter after Gary Anderson's 45-yard field goal, the Steelers forced the Browns to punt, but returner Rick Woods fumbled and Mark Harper recovered for Cleveland.

The Pittsburgh defense again held, but Dave Edwards was called for a 5-yard penalty for running into kicker Matt Bahr on a 43-yard field goal try. Two Kosar pass completions later, Earnest Byner scored the deciding touchdown from the 4 with 8:35 to play.

"It wasn't a real sweet victory but how many times did we lose games like that?" Newsome said. "Now our rookies have a streak. They've never lost in Three Rivers Stadium.

"I never believed in a jinx, but I'm still glad it's behind me. I know a lot of guys I played with over the years wish they were here."

The Steelers, 1-4 and off to their worst start since an identical record in 1976, still had a chance to win, advancing to the Browns' 35 with 1:30 to play.

On a second-and-10 play, quarterback Mark Malone fumbled and running back Earnest Jackson recovered, only to fumble himself after gaining three yards. Chris Rockins recovered for the Browns, who then ran out the clock.

The Steelers earlier had lost two other fumbles and Malone had thrown an interception, all of which led to Browns' scoring.

"We gave up the big play on special teams and we fumbled too much," said Steelers Coach Chuck Noll. "You can't fumble as much as we fumbled and turn it over and expect to win."

Malone's 10th interception of the season and a kickoff return fumble by Donnie Elder led to Kosar's 15-yard first-quarter scoring pass to rookie Webster Slaughter and a 22-yard Bahr field goal that made it 10-0.

The game's most controversial call preceded a three-touchdown outburst in the final 4:06 of the first half. Kosar fumbled the ball as he was attempting to throw and nose tackle Edmund Nelson recovered, setting up Malone's 1-yard touchdown run.

The Browns unsuccessfully argued that Kosar was throwing the ball, which would have been an incompletion and not a fumble. The instant reply official, Mike Lisetski, upheld the fumble ruling.

Monessen next for MV Catholic

Monessen is the next stop for Mon Valley Catholic High's slumping footballers.

The Spartans fell to 1-3 in the Eastern Conference and 1-5 overall with a 20-6 loss at Oakmont Saturday to Riverview.

Jerry Michaux scored Mon Valley Catholic's touchdown on an eight yard pass from Jason Ruscitto in the third period to knot the score at 6-6 before the Raiders broke the game open with two touchdowns in the final stanza.

A 58 yard pass from John Shoop to Dave Brown put Riverview ahead to stay with John Hanlin, who gained 130 yards on 14 carries, sealing the win with a five yard run.

Hanlin scored Riverview's first touchdown in the second period on a 12 yard run.

The Spartans play at Monessen Friday night.

What happened to Rostosky?

By BRIAN HERMAN
Sports Editor

A little less than two years ago, Pete Rostosky was sitting on Cloud Nine with the Pittsburgh Steelers.

At the age of 23 and a free agent from the University of Connecticut, Rostosky - an Elizabeth Forward High graduate - was starting at offensive tackle for the Steelers at the tailend of the 1984 campaign.

At the time the Steelers were thinking about the glory days of the 1970s when they won four Super Bowls.

With Rostosky starting when Ray Snell went out with an injury, the Steelers made the playoffs by shading Cleveland, 23-20, at Three Rivers Stadium and beating the Raiders, 13-7, in Los Angeles.

The Steelers then upset the favored Broncos, 24-17, in Denver before getting picked apart by Miami's Dan Marino in the AFC title game, 45-28.

Since that January day in Miami, things have gone downhill for the Steelers and Rostosky.

The Steelers have lost 13 of their last 21 games including Sunday's 27-24 defeat to Cleveland, the Browns' first in 17 tries at Three Rivers Stadium.

Rostosky has lost more than that.

He's lost his starting job to Ray Pinney and was one of four Steelers not to get into the contest against the Browns. The other three were fullback Frank Pollard, who's out with an injury; backup rookie quarterback Bubby Brister and reserve offensive lineman Randy Rasmussen.

PETE ROSTOSKY

Why is Rostosky spending virtually all of his Sunday afternoons on the sidelines this season instead of on the playing field?

"Ray has the experience and they have more confidence in him," answered the former Warrior standout.

Rostosky, however, isn't happy the way his fourth year in the NFL is going.

"I'm getting edgy," he confessed in a quiet Steeler dressing room yesterday. "I just have to be patient. I want to contribute and I can't do that by standing and watching."

Injuries have hurt Rostosky's chances in his young pro career.

But he claims that's nt the case this year.

"I'm healthy now and ready to play," he said. "I feel strong and my weight is good. I'm going to have keep working hard and good things will happen."

California stays on unbeaten track

By BOB GARDNER

[illegible] to keep reminding the defense that they would be scored upon by this team," reflected California University head football coach Jeff Petrucci as he stretched out in a chair. "When it happened, I didn't want them to lose their poise."

They didn't

Behind 21-14, the Vulcans rallied for two second half touchdowns on the running of Steve Brown and the passing of Brendan Folmar to upend Lock Haven University, 28-21, and keep their unbeaten status intact Saturday afternoon in a key Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference outing at California's Adamson Stadium.

Brown, who rushed for 130 yards in 15 carries, broke over left tackle, tight-roped his way down the left field sideline for 64 yards, cut to his right, swivel-hipped his way out of the outstreched fingertips of the last fast closing defender at the Lock Haven 15 and cruised into the end zone. His 79-yard touchdown run with 50 seconds left in the third quarter, coupled with Greg Schuessler's extra point conversion put California into a 21-21 deadlock.

"You don't foresee a play going that far, but I'll take it," said Petrucci of Brown's outstanding run.

Folmar scored the game's clincher with a dive from a yard out, capping a 46-yard drive in which he passed twice for 30 yards with 5:45 remaining in the game.

California took a 7-0 lead with 6:22 gone in the first quarter when Folmar, who rushed for only 11 net yards on nine carries, hit Frank Sacco with a 13-yard scoring pass.

The Bald Eagles, now 0-4, came right back to tie at 8:36 of the second quarter on Tom Symkowski's yard plunge before Folmar's 14-yard run put the Vulcans ahead, 14-7, with 1:15 left in the half.

Lock Haven scored twice in the third quarter on two and 29-yard runs, respectively, by quarterback Pat Cahill and freshman halfback Rob Gair, before Brown's run tied it up.

Cahill, who prefers a ground game to an aerial attack, followed his own script as he directed the Lock Haven advance. The Bald Eagles ground out 205 net yards on the ground but had only 52 in the air as Cahill completed just six of 13 attempts and threw one interception to Ken Huether which halted a drive on the California 44 with 12:26 left in the [illegible].

Folmar completed 16 of 30 passes for 188 yards, including 11 of 22 for 128 in the first half, and had one interception. His favorite receivers were Terry O'Shea (4-34), Ringgold's Eddie Alford (3-31), Steve Brown (2-30), and Eddie Egerton (2-33).

Lock Haven's wishbone attack gave Petrucci some anxious moments late in the game when the Bald Eagles had a 41-yard drive stall on the Vulcans' 28 with 2:16 left.

"The wishbone is tough to defend against," Petrucci explained, "especially the way Cahill operates it. I was more anxious that last minute out there, today, then I was against Clarion last week."

California, now 5-0, puts its perfect record on the line Saturday at Shippensburag and visits Millersville the following Friday before returning home Oct. 25 against Slippery Rock in the annual Homecoming contest.

Mets tune for NL playoffs

NEW YORK (AP) — Battle plans may have been set for the National League playoffs, but the New York Mets warn they could be misleading.

When Houston's pitching staff finished with a flourish, there were those who believed the Astros had taken over the edge in pitching, where the two teams' strengths were said to rest.

"That's the battleground a lot of people have hit on," Mets pitcher Ron Darling said after New York finished the regular season with a 9-0 victory Sunday over the Pittsburgh Pirates. "Our staff has gotten a lot of notoriety, but is Houston better? Who knows. I don't think so."

The Astros, in winning the National League West, did so with a flourish, beginning on Sept. 23 during which they won six of eight games, all by shutout. The stretch included Mike Scott's no-hitter against San Francisco on Sept. 25 to clinch the division, 6 1-3 innings of no-hit pitching by Nolan Ryan, and rookie Jim Deshaies 12-strikeout, two-hitter.

Pointing to the age of the second two pitchers in Houston's playoff rotation — Ryan is 39 and Bob Knepper is 32 — the 25-year-old Darling said: "I'd like to see what our numbers are like when we're that old. We're young. And you can't take away from us that we lead the league in pitching."

Darling, 15-6, combined with Sid Fernandez on a four-hit shutout as the NL East champion Mets finished 21½ games ahead of second-place Philadelphia. Darling, who will start Game Three of the playoffs, gave up Darryl Strawberry, Gary Carter and Ray Knight hit home runs for the Mets. Strawberry's was a grand slam.

The Mets thus ended their season with five straight victories to go 108-54, tying the 1975 Cincinnati Reds for the best record in baseball since divisional play was instituted in 1969. The Mets won their last five and 14 of their last 18, beginning with a victory Sept. 17 that clinched the division.

"We wanted that game because it put us in an echelon with the Reds," Darling said of the final victory. "It differentiates between a good team and a great team."

The Pirates, meanwhile, finished place with baseball's worst record, 64-98.

"The Mets, three or four years ago, were right where we are now," Pirates Manager Jimmy Leyland said. "We're coming."

The Pirates manager said he and his players "don't owe anybody an apology for our efforts. Right now, the Mets overmatched us. However, they're not overmatched us. They've wiped out a few teams."

The Mets ended their season series with Pittsburgh at 17-1, a club record. New York also set club marks for homers with 148, runs with 783 and RBI with 730.

Carter hit his three-run homer in the first inning off rookie Hipolito Pena, 0-3. It was Carter's 24th and gave him 105 RBI for the season, tying the club mark set by Rusty Staub in 1975.

Knight hit his homer, a two-run shot, in the fourth. It was his 11th, the second highest total of his career. He had 14 in 1980.

Strawberry hit his grand slam in the fifth to make it 9-0. It was his third career slam and the 27th homer of his season. In his last 11 games, Strawberry had six homers and 15 RBI.

"I can see the enthusiasm level and the concentration building," Mets Manager Davey Johnson said. "We're right where we want to be... Gary struggled. Straw struggled. But I can see them gearing up for the playoffs. They're taking care of themselves."

Fernandez earned his first major league save, giving up two hits the rest of the way. Fernandez will be the Mets' fourth playoff starter.

Alumni to play at Charleroi

Everything is in readiness for the second annual Alumni Soccer Game at Charleroi Area High School.

Well, almost.

The alumni contest will be played Tuesday (Oct. 7) at 6 p.m. at the CAHS Stadium prior to the WPIAL Section 4 feature between Charleroi and Belle Vernon Area. And, while a good number of former Cougars are ready for the clash, organizers of the contest are reminding all others that they can still join the fun.

"We've got room for any former Charleroi High School player who wants to participate in the alumni game," said Cliff "Kip" Harosky, chairman of the Cougar Soccer Boosters, which sponsors the contest. "We had several former players who indicated they wanted to take part, and all they have to do is be at the Stadium tomorrow evening."

Harosky and Tom Villella, CAHS assistant coach, urged all Alumni Game participants to be at the Charleroi Area, where the second annual Alumni Game will enhance the feature at 7 p.m.

The BVA/Charleroi affair is an important contest, too, as the host Cougars still have a shot at second place in the section scramble. Charleroi is currently in third with a 6-3-1 league record and trails Trinity by four points. A Trinity loss at Thomas Jefferson would bring the Cougars to within two points of the Hillers.

Charleroi's task, however, won't be easy.

Belle Vernon Area (4-6-0) boasts two of the top players in the WPIAL in goalie Craig Haddock and midfielder/forward Jeff Nartowicz. A veteran senior, Nartowicz rewrote the BVA record book last Thursday when he scored two goals in the Leopards' 6-2 win over Waynesburg. Nartowicz now has 40 career goals, and he shows 18 on the season as Section 4's top individual scorer.

Nartowicz also holds BVA's all-time assist record with 21.

While Haddock, also a four-year veteran, protects the nets, the BVA defense is anchored by Dean Matty. And, the Leps' scoring attack is balanced by freshman Mike Posey, who has 10 goals in his first season of varsity play.

Charleroi, which is headed for the WPIAL Class AA playoffs, will carry an overall record of 9-4-3 into Tuesday's clash after tying Plum 2-2 in an exhibition game Saturday.

Denver Byron scored for Charleroi in the non-league game, and the Cougars' other goal came when a loose ball deflected off a Plum defender into the nets. Charleroi for a good part of the game, and Chuck Bruce and Stacey Winnett shared goalie duties.

Good day for Rice, Ortego

The Associated Press

Keith Ortego and Jerry Rice don't settle for small potatoes when it comes to catching passes.

The second-year NFL wide receivers, Ortego for Chicago and Rice for San Francisco, took turns embarrassing the opposition with long pass plays Sunday, catching six passes each.

"He had the adrenaline going," Bears quarterback Jim McMahon said after teaming with Ortego for 157 yards and one touchdown in a 23-0 victory over Minnesota. "I knew he was fast, but not that fast."

"We've always wanted a big-play receiver and we certainly have him and we have to take full advantage of him," 49ers Coach Bill Walsh said of Rice after he combined with Jeff Kemp for 172 yards and three touchdowns in a 35-21 victory over the Indianapolis Colts.

Ortego caught a 40-yard pass to set up a two-yard touchdown by Walter Payton in the second quarter, putting Chicago ahead 7-0. McMahon also hit Ortego for a 58-yard bomb in the fourth quarter.

Rice caught scoring passes of 45, 58 and 16 yards from Kemp. The former Mississippi Valley State star now has six touchdowns this season, four of them for 45 or more yards.

Eagles 16, Falcons 0

Philadelphia held Atlanta to 228 yards, 195 under their league-leading average, to hand the Falcons their first loss.

The Eagles stopped the Falcons from scoring when they went inside the 10 on their first two possessions, snapping a streak of 16 consecutive times that Atlanta had scored when it got inside the 20.

Philadelphia's offense struggled early, but Junior Tautalatasi and Ron Johnson turned short passes into long gains that set up a touchdown and field goal late in the first half. Ron Jaworski's eight-yard pass to Mike Quick accounted for the only touchdown of the game.

Paul McFadden kicked three field goals for the Eagles.

Raiders 24, Chiefs 17

Los Angeles started a rally from a 17-0 deficit with a touchdown pass from Marc Wilson to Dokie Williams that the replay official tried to disallow.

Jack Reader, the official in the video replay booth, ruled that Williams was out of bounds on a 12-yard touchdown pass in the second quarter. But umpire Jim Keck misunderstood Reader and mistakenly let the play stand.

After Williams' controversial catch, Napolean McCallum scored his first NFL touchdown on a 12-yard run and Jim Plunkett, off the bench when Wilson suffered a hand injury, put the Raiders on top with an 18-yard touchdown pass to Jesse Hester.

Patriots 34, Dolphins 7

Tony Eason threw two touchdown passes before suffering a rib injury and New England scored on five of its first six possesssions as Miami fell to 1-4 for the first time since Don Shula became coach in 1970.

Eason, who completed 12 of 16 passes, threw touchdown passes of two yards to Willie Scott and 38 yards to Irving Fryar in the first half. Eason left the game in the final minute of the first half and may not play next Sunday against the New York Jets.

Dan Marino was intercepted three times before his four-yard pass to Lorenzo Hampton in the fourth quarter let Miami avoid its first shutout since 1982.

Redskins 14, Saints 6

George Rogers pounded his former New Orleans teammates for 110 yards on 31 carries, including a touchdown, giving him seven for the season.

Jay Schroeder hit Art Monk with a two-yard scoring pass in the second quarter for Washington's other touchdown. New Orleans' scores came on two field goals by Morten Andersen.

Broncos 29, Cowboys 14

Denver also stayed unbeaten with the help of a swarming defense, the passing of John Elway and the all-around play of Gerald Willhite against Dallas.

Willhite scored three touchdowns in the second quarter, running one yard and catching two of Elway's three touchdown passes — for nine and 15 yards. Gene Lang caught the other scoring pass, from 12 yards in the fourth quarter.

The Broncos held Herschel Walker to 33 yards in 15 carries while Cowboys quarterback Danny White and Tony Dorsett sat out the game with injuries.

Jets 14, Bills 13

Mickey Shuler's 36-yard touchdown reception from Ken O'Brien with 57 seconds remaining lifted New York over luckless Buffalo.

The Bills, whose only touchdown was a 40-yard pass from Jim Kelly to Greg Bell, has led in the fourth quarter in all five of its games and has been outscored by a total of 11 points in its four losses.

The Jets, trailing 13-7, went 80 yards in five plays for the winning score. O'Brien's third-and-1 pass found Shuler behind strong safety Martin Bayless.

Rams 26, Bucaneers 20

Eric Dickerson ran 42 yards for his second touchdown of the game 2:16 into overtime, lifting Los Angeles over Tampa Bay.

Dickerson, the NFL's leading rusher this season, ran for more than 200 yards for the fourth time in his career, finishing with 207 yards on 30 carries. He also scored on a 40-yard run in the first quarter.

Tampa Bay, which lost its second overtime game in a row, had forced the overtime when Donald Igwebuike kicked a 37-yard field goal as time expired in regulation.

Giants 13, Cardinals 6

New York improved its record to 4-1 despite a listless performance against winless St. Louis.

The Giants netted only 144 yards in total offense, while Pro Bowl quarterback Phil Simms managed only eight completions and 104 yards in 24 passes. In their 55-yard drive to the game's only touchdown in the on a pass interference penalty against St. Louis cornerback Lionel Washington.

Joe Morris finished the drive with a one-yard scoring run. Phil McConkey's 20-yard punt return set up the first of two field goals by Raul Allegre in the second quarter as the Giants overcame a 3-0 deficit.

Lions 24, Oilers 13

Detroit won easily despite being outgained 454-234 against Houston.

Oilers quarterback Warren Moon connected on 21 of 38 pass attempts for a career-high 398 yards, including five for 155 yards to wide receiver Ernest Givins and an 81-yard touchdown bomb to Drew Hill. But Moon was intercepted three times.

The Lions scored all three of their touchdowns in the second quarter as James Jones scored on two one-yard dives and Eric Hipple teamed with Herman Hunter for an 18-yard scoring pass play.

Bengals 34, Packers 28

Boomer Esiason threw three touchdown passes and James Brooks ran for two touchdowns in a 27-point second quarter as Cincinnati handed Green Bay its fifth straight loss.

Esiason completed scoring throws of 13, seven and 15 yards. The first two of those touchdown passes were to Cris Collinsworth.

Brooks, who rushed for 94 yards on 20 carries, scored on touchdown runs of nine and eight yards in the second quarter.

Temple of doom

Panthers' loss upsets Congemi

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Just when the University of Pittsburgh's football program seemingly was about to turn the corner, the Panthers slipped ... literally.

Pitt tailback Charles Gladman fumbled on a cloudburst-slickened field two plays into the second half, setting up Paul Palmer's deciding 13-yard touchdown run as Temple surprised the Panthers 19-13 Saturday night.

The Panthers, coming off a 48-16 rout of West Virginia, were hoping to use the Temple game as a springboard to a return to national respectability and perhaps the Top 20 ratings.

Instead Pitt took a major-league unhappy quarterback John Congemi.

"We did too little, too late," Congemi said after Pitt failed to score despite advancing to the Temple 12-yard line in the final minute.

"We didn't come out playing the way we should. If we jump on them the way we should have, they probably would have quit by the second quarter," he said. "We eyes closed. We're a better team than they are, we just didn't prove it."

Congemi said Pitt's problem was that the Panthers believed the game would be a rout. Temple Coach Bruce Arians said the Owls won "because they believed in themselves."

"We believed all along we could win this game and we also believe in ourselves," he said. "Believing paid off for us this week."

After failing to beat Pitt for more than 30 years until 1984, the 3-2 Owls have defeated the 2-2-1 Panthers twice in three years.

That's why Arians got upset when it was suggested the Owls' victory was an upset.

"The days of taking Temple for granted are over," Arians said. "They can't use being flat for an excuse. They shouldn't have been flat for us. This wasn't any upset. We respected them before we came here, but we knew we could beat them."

The Owls not only beat Pitt, they beat the Panthers at their own game, the run-and-shoot offense.

Temple built a 12-0 lead with the help of some unusual offensive formations that employed no running backs and five receivers, a mirror image of Pitt's own run-and-shoot.

The Owls then overcame not only a second-half monsoon that dumped one-half inch of rain on downtown Pittsburgh in five minutes, but a Pitt comeback that ended near the Temple goal line as the game ended.

Sophomore tailback Craig "Ironhead" Heyward plowed his way through the monsoon-like rain, wind and Temple's defense for a career-high 171 yards, but the Panthers bogged down in the elements twice in the final four minutes when they had a chance to win the game.

Pitt marched to the Temple 28 from center on the treacherous field eluded quarterback John Congemi on a fourth-and-5 play and the Owls held.

Pitt got the ball back and quickly used four consecutive Congemi completions to move from its 20 to the Temple 13 in the final minute. Congemi threw two straight incompletions with receivers open in the eight-yard loss on the final play.

Congemi was about to get off another play when the officials signaled the game was over. The scoreboard clock had malfunctioned in the final minute and the official time was being kept on the field.

"I couldn't get any cooperation from the referees at all," Congemi said. "We were trying to yell and ask how much time was left but they wouldn't answer."

Pitt Coach Mike Gottfried's complaint was that the official keeping the clock was about 20 yards from the line of scrimmage — "He was out in center field," he said — and the Panthers didn't know how much time was remaining.

Palmer's deciding touchdown run was included in a 105-yard rushing performance that gives him 15 100-yard efforts in his past 17 starts.

"We needed this game to prove a point to some people," Palmer said.

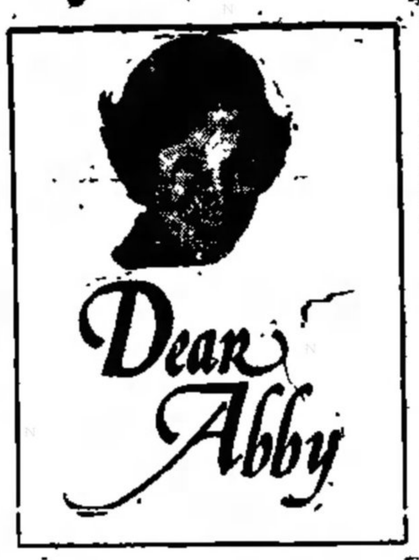
Fire tips for all seasons



DEAR READERS: This is Fire Prevention Week, and despite declines, the United States and Canada still have the highest fire death rates of all the developed countries in the free world.

The most recent figures: Fire deaths in the United States: 5,240. The total loss of property: $6.71 billion! Each season has its own special fire hazards. Here are some tips for all seasons:

FALL: If you enjoy camping, select a tent made of flame-resistant fabric. Pack a reliable flashlight with plenty of extra batteries to light the inside of your tent — never use matches or candles. When building a campfire, place it downwind of your tent. And NEVER try to hasten the burning by using gasoline or other flammable liquid starters.

If you use your fireplace, have your chimney professionally cleaned in the fall to make sure it's in good condition for the coming season.

WINTER: More fires occur during winter than in any other season. The reasons: home heating and the holiday season.

If you use a portable heater, be sure it is placed away from combustibles — draperies, furniture, paper, etc. Remember, the surface heat of some portable heaters may reach 500 degrees, so keep a careful watch on your children and warn them to keep away from heaters. Hospitals are treating an increasing number of patients with burns resulting from contact with the outside surface of some portable heaters.

For a merry Christmas, choose a Christmas tree that does not have shedding needles, and keep it stored in water while it is in the house. If you choose an artificial tree, choose one that is flame-resistant.

After holiday parties, before retiring, check your ashtrays for smoldering cigarette butts, and carefully examine all upholstered chairs and sofas to make sure that no "live" cigarette butts have fallen between the cushions. Remember, most house fires occur between 8 [illegible] sleeping.

SPRING: Take spring cleaning seriously — clean out your attic, basement, garage and workshop. Throw out trash, especially combustibles such as rags, newspapers, magazines, boxes and scraps of wood. Never smoke while fueling gas-powered lawn mowers or chain saws. If you must store gasoline, [illegible] designed especially for that purpose. And store oily rags and paint in a cool place in tightly sealed metal containers.

SUMMER: When cooking out, NEVER use flammable liquids near live coals. An explosion or flash fire could result. When you've finished cooking, soak the coals with water and make absolutely sure they're out when you leave. Smoldering coals that appear to be "dead" can reignite as much as a day later. If you use a propane gas grill, always have the lighted match in position before turning on the gas.

Some tips for all seasons:

— Never smoke in bed.

— Never leave invalids or small children alone in the house — not even for "a few minutes."

— Never use flammable liquids for dry cleaning indoors.

— Have periodic fire drills in your home to be sure everyone knows what to do in case of fire.

— Keep easy-to-use fire extinguishers in your kitchen, cottage, back bedrooms and on your boat. Invest in smoke detectors and be sure that they are kept clean and in working order.

— The telephone number of your fire department should be taped to every telephone in your house. If it isn't, should a fire occur, don't waste time trying to find it, get out, and call from a neighbor's house. And once you are out, stay out. No treasure is worth risking your life for.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth sign.

FOR TUESDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1986

ARIES
(Mar. 21 to Apr. 19)

You may undervalue advice you receive now. Though you're uncertain about results, you're making steps in the right direction. Keep at it.

TAURUS
(Apr. 20 to May 20)

Some old bills may need your attention. Partners lend you a helping hand. Listen to their suggestions. Accent moderation when socializing tonight.

GEMINI
(May 21 to June 20)

You need to do more than helping out in little ways. Pitch in and be there. Others require full support. It may be all talk and little substance in business.

CANCER
(June 21 to July 22)

Don't overextend yourself right now. Out-of-town company may be out of the question. Self-discipline enables you to cope with today's work pressures.

LEO
(July 23 to Aug. 22)

Include a relative in entertainment plans. Some face extra responsibility in connection with a child. Guard against unwise expenditure tonight.

VIRGO
(Aug. 23 to Sept. 22)

Though you're economical at home today, you may go overboard when buying gifts. You can't buy your way to someone's heart. Relatives contact you.

LIBRA
(Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)

Keep abreast of values in mail-order catalogues. Serious mental work is favored. Remember basic health rules tonight. Don't be self-indulgent.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)

In some ways you're tightfisted with the dollar today, but tonight vanity could prove expensive. Letting your hair down could turn out to be indiscreet now.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)

Perhaps you're taking yourself a bit too seriously. A private chat is beneficial. Immoderate behavior could lead to an embarrassing situation tonight.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan 19)

You're more withdrawn than usual. Don't keep problems to yourself. Bend the ear of a friend. A business proposition is way off the mark. Be realistic.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 20 to Feb. 18)

A trip right now may be an unnecessary extravagance. You get good advice about a career matter. A friend, though, burdens you with his or her problems.

PISCES
(Feb. 19 to Mar. 20)

Don't procrastinate. Attend to necessary career concerns. Curb the lid on credit card expenditures. You're tempted now to spend beyond your means.

YOU BORN TODAY have a love of beauty coupled with an analytical mentality. You are naturally interested in the truths that lie below the surface and may be drawn to creative writing, psychology and religion. You often keep things to yourself and should strive to be less secretive. You should have no trouble commercializing your creative gifts. At times, your handling of money is inconsistent.

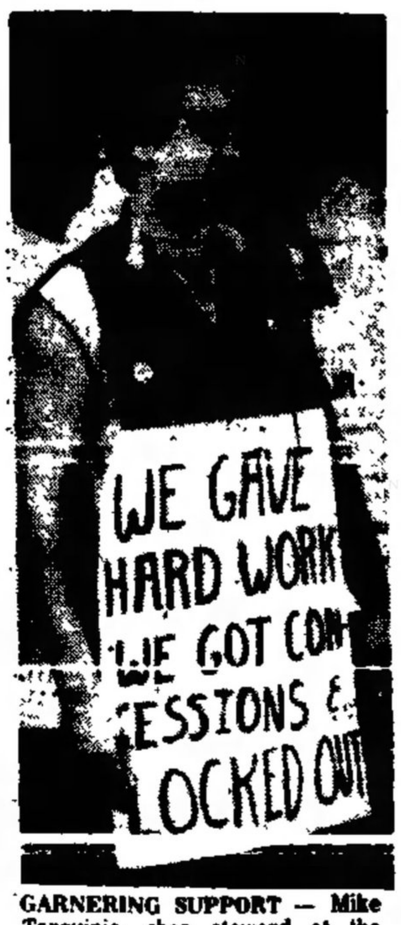
Rally supports locked-out local at Shop 'n Save stores



GARNERING SUPPORT — Mike Tarquinio, shop steward at the Monessen Shop 'n Save store, was pleased with the support United Food and Commercial Workers Local 23 received at its rally on Saturday. Tarquinio is pictured above as he wears a sign bearing the words "We gave hard work We got concessions and locked out.

In its continuing effort to save jobs and negotiate a contract, United Food and Commercial Workers Local 23 held a rally Saturday at the Mon Valley Shopping Plaza in Monessen.

Local 23 represents workers at the Shop 'n Save supermarkets in Monessen and Rostraver Township who found themselves locked out of both stores when they reported for work Sept. 18.

The lockout occurred after negotiations with BILLCO Foods, Inc. stalled the previous afternoon.

More than 100 persons turned out for Saturday's rally.

In attendance to offer their support for the locked out employees were United Steel Workers of America Locals 1190, 1187, 1869, 1229 and 2698, along with Garment Union Local 887; and the Monessen Chapter of the Pennsylvania State [illegible]

Also present at the rally were Monessen Mayor James Sepesky, Mon Valley Labor Council president Don Shephard, and Local 23 president Carl Huber.

According to Local 23 members, both stores were to be placed up for sale today by the owner, Bill Balliard, who was not available for comment this morning.

The union is hoping that the new owner will recognize Local 23 and that those who previously worked in the two stores will get their jobs back.

"The stores are up for sale, as we understand it," Gary Best, a representative of Local 23, said this morning. "Several companies have put in bids for the stores, and we have been in contact with each of them."

Among those submitting bids, according to Best, are Giant Eagle, Foodland, and Penn Traffic, a company which operates grocery stores in Washington, Pa. and Greensburg.

Union officials have said that Balliard made an offer on Sept. 17 and asked them to put it to a vote by the members, sight unseen. When union officials refused because of additional concessions requested by the employer, talks stalled.

According to a fact sheet distributed by Local 23 on Saturday, the employees of both stores "gave [illegible] concessions about a month ago to help save their jobs and keep these stores in their community."

"Many of these employees earned less than $5 an hour," according to the fact sheet, and "after receiving these concessions the company implemented additional wage cuts that had not been agreed to by the union."

Michael Tarquinio, shop steward at the Monessen store, said the company had said it was in financial trouble, which is the reason the employees agreed to concessions.

"Bu[illegible]LCO locked out its loyal employees who gave them concessions," the union said. "BILLCO has refused to bargain in good faith with Local 23 for these employees."

Mayor Sepesky, speaking to the crowd, said the only solution to the problem is for the two sides to return to the negotiating tables and to bargain in good faith.

A three-year contract between BILLCO and its 40 union employees at each store expired Sept. 6. The [illegible] tract for two weeks before the lockout.

Union officials said they chose to hold the rally in Monessen instead of at the Rostraver store in order to generate business for other stores in the Mon Valley Shopping Plaza, which have been greatly hurt by the closing of the Shop n' Save.

Unfair labor practice charges filed against BILLCO Foods with the National Labor Relations Board are pending, union officials said

Strike continues at Holiday Inn

Informational picket lines were set up at 6 a.m. Saturday at the Belle Vernon Holiday Inn by employees who walked off the job after talks on a new contract reached an apparent impasse.

The Inn's 25 part-time and 10 full-time employees are members of Local Union No. 23 of the United Food and Commercial Workers.

The picket line was established after attempts to reach accord on a new contract with the Holiday Inn's owners, Belle Vernon Motel Corporation, fell short, according to George Yurasko, director of collective bargaining for Local No 23.

Yurasko told The Valley Independent that attornies for Local 23 would file an unfair labor practice charge against the Holiday Inn owners this morning with the National Labor Relations Board which alleges that the Belle Vernon Motel Corporation has failed to bargain in good faith.

The old contract expired at midnight Tuesday, Sept 30, and the employees worked without a contract until Saturday morning.

Three of the owners — Rose Calderone of Monongahela and Remona Gilmore and James Courtney, both of Somerset Twp. — could not be reached for comment.

"We are filing a petition with with the National Labor Relations Board which charges the owners of the Holiday Inn with bad faith bargaining," said Yurasko.

Yurasko said "nothing meaningful" resulted from contract talks held late Friday night. "We had asked the owners to sit down with us and negotiate as early as last July prior to the expiration of the present contract, but they refused," he said.

He said the union had offered to extend the present contract on a day-to-day basis subject to ratification of members while talks continued, but said the owners refused the offer and would agree to an extension of the old contract for a longer term.

Yurasko said that among the stumbling blocks to accord on a new contract were the owners' refusal to (1) deferentiate between full-time and part-time employees in the contract language, (2) provide the union with requested information which could be used to evaluate company proposals, and (3) the company's repeated efforts to exclude from contract coverage, members previously covered under the provisions of the old contract.

The vote to strike was ratified by an almost 7 to 2 majority of members, Yurasko said. No further talks have been scheduled, but Yurakso said both union and company would be working through the efforts of a federal mediator which has been called in to resolve the stalemate

Yurasko said it was his understanding that the Inn's restaurant and bar has been closed and that management has undertaken all other aspects of the Holiday Inn's operation during the strike.

Trojan Committee

A special meeting of the Trojan Day Committee will be held Wednesday, Oct. 8, at 7 p.m. at California Area High School. All committee members and representatives of groups which participated in the annual event are requested to be present. Fired attendants sue TWA

CHICAGO (AP) — An $80 million class-action lawsuit has been filed on behalf of 3,000 Trans World Airlines flight attendants who lost their jobs during a strike earlier this year

The lawsuit charges that TWA was obligated to give striking employees a letter stating they had a right to preferential hiring by other airlines under the 1978 Airline Deregulation Act

However, instead of being told of the statute, the flight attendants claim they were led to believe it was futile to seek jobs with other carriers and that to do so would jeopardize the possibility they would be recalled by TWA

To date, according to the lawsuit more than 3 000 people have been hired by other carriers for jobs that could have been assigned to the employees who were on strike

Rally for bar gang rapists' freedom

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — Two years after four Portugese-Americans were convicted of raping a woman on a tavern's pool table, thousands of residents who still feel stigmatized by the case rallied for the men's release.

As many as 5,000 people turned out for the demonstration Sunday in this heavily Portugese-American city south of Boston, ignoring community leaders' warnings that the rally would revive bad publicity surrounding the case.

They cheered when Edmond Dinis, a former Bristol County district attorney who called the rally, urged Gov. Michael Dukakis to commute the men's prison sentences.

"The Portuguese-American community of Massachusetts and Rhode Island is very unhappy about the stigma they have been given. And they are not afraid to stand up and say an injustice has been done," said Dinis.

On March 6, 1983, a 21-year-old woman was gang raped at Big Dan's tavern. Four men were convicted and two acquitted in a 1984 trial, parts of which were broadcast nationwide on cable television.

Daniel Silva, John Cordeiro and Victor Raposo are serving nine-to 12-year sentences, while Joseph Vieira is serving a six-to eight-year term. Their convictions are being appealed.

After the trial, about 10,000 people demonstrated, complaining that the news media focused unfairly on the defendants' Portugese descent.

Some demonstrators Sunday, wearing stickers saying "Free the Big Dan's 4 Now," jeered and pushed at reporters as they interviewed Dinis.

Dinis accused District Attorney Ronald Pina of abusing his power for political gain

Pastor installed at strife-torn church

CLAIRTON, Pa. (AP) — A new pastor has been installed at a Lutheran church that was closed and later reorganized after a long, bitter dispute between church officials and pro-labor activists.

"I am very enthusiastic. The emphasis is on the future," the new pastor, the Rev. Walter Koehler, 59, said at the former Trinity Lutheran Church.

Koehler conducted Sunday morning services for about 50 worshipers at the stone church, located on a hillside overlooking this depressed factory town along the Monongahela River.

"There has been so much hurt and so much evil ... but we must begin to forgive," he told the congregation at what is now known as the Lutheran Church of the Holy Spirit.

The service was conducted without incident. Later in the day, pastor D. Douglas Roth, 35, and four others stood outside with protest signs as more than 200 people gathered for Koehler's installation.

The crowd filed quietly past Roth, an outspoken supporter of the pro-labor Denominational Ministry Strategy now known as DMX, who was fired as pastor after refusing to relinquish his pulpit at his bishop's orders for refusing to obey his church superiors.

Roth, ordered to stay away from the church or face contempt of court charges, denounced the new church and its congregation.

"The Holy Spirit has little to do with this church," he said. "Mellon (Bank) worked to close this church and now they are opening it in their own image. My ministry goes on. I want to announce that this is not church, but a Mellon club."

Roth and other DMX supporters repeatedly have accused Mellon, USX Corp. and other Pittsburgh corporations of contributing to the region's high blue-collar unemployment.

During 1984 and 1985, they regularly protested at churches attended by corporate executives, sprayed synthetic skunk oil in various businesses and used other confronta-

[illegible] is of the unemployed.

John Joseph, a member of the new church's steering committee, guarded the locked church doors during Sunday night's ceremony.

It is an exhilarating feeling, knowing the church is getting back to normal," he said. "These have been very trying times for us."

Roth was arrested at the altar in November 1984 and jailed for more than three months for contempt of court. Two months later, some of his supporters barricaded themselves inside the church and sheriff's deputies had to break in to remove them.

The Western Penns[illegible]/West Virginia Synod of the Lutheran Church in America declared the church defunct in late 1984 until a new pastor could be found and a new congregation formed.

The Rev. Richard F. Price, dean of the synod's Monongahela Valley District, expressed optimism at Koehler's installation ceremony.

"You have a challenge before you," Price said. "Our faith in you will go forth. You will provide a way for the ministry to go forward."

Among the protesters joining Roth on Sunday was Daniel Solberg of Allison Park, who like Roth was stripped from the Lutheran clergy

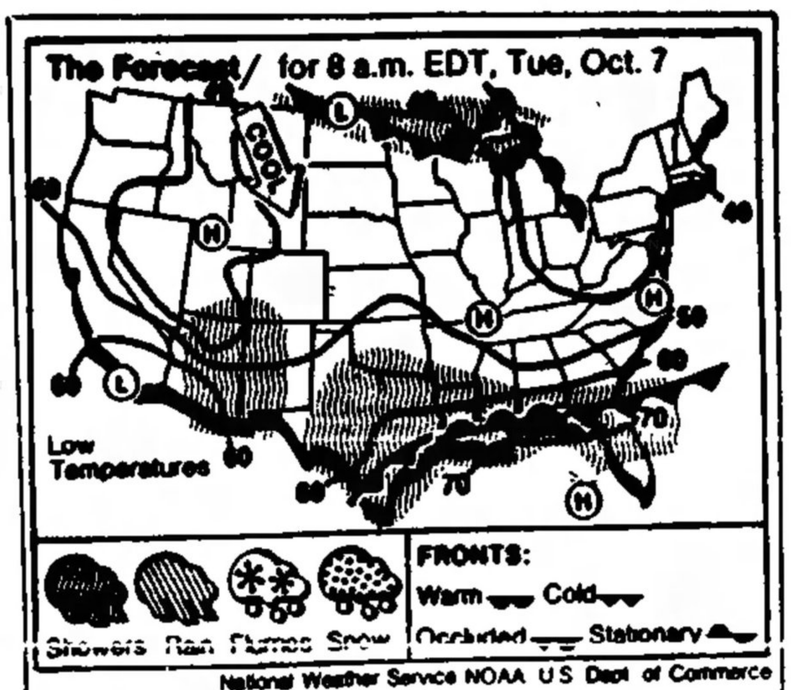
Wages frozen for transit workers

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A federal arbitrator has ordered that wages for about 2,600 Port Authority Transit drivers and maintenance workers be frozen for the next three years.

Arbitrator Richard Bloch of Washington, D.C., said Sunday however, that members of Amalgamated Transit Union Local 85 must receive cost-of-living increases.

The union had been working without a contract since Dec. 1. Negotiations between the transit system and union broke down in January, sending the dispute to arbitration.

Local President Larry Klos said the cost-of-living increase will boost employees' hourly salaries from $12.94 to $13.04 during the first year of the contract. Employees' sick pay also was increased from $105 to $115 a week.



Weather outlook

THE DISTRICT

Tonight, mostly clear with scattered frost. Low in the mid 30s. Light winds from the west. Tuesday, partly cloudy and not as cool. High around 60.

AROUND THE STATE

Cooler temperatures will prevail across Pennsylvania tonight. Lowers will be around 40, although it will be colder in the mountain regions. Frost and freezing temperatures also are expected in the mountain areas, and winds will be light from the west. Tuesday, partly cloudy skies. Highs around 60.

LOOKING AHEAD

Extended forecast for southwestern Pennsylvania — Cool Wednesday through Friday. Partly cloudy with a chance of showers late Wednesday into Thursday. Fair Friday. Lows in the 30s Wednesday and Friday and in the 40s Thursday. Highs Wednesday in the upper 50s to mid 60s, falling to the 50s by Friday.

The six-to-10-day outlook for southwestern Pennsylvania, Oct. 11 to 15, calls for temperatures and precipitation to be below normal.

THE NATION

The National Weather Service is calling for showers Tuesday for the Southwest and from Texas through the Gulf coast to Florida and southern Georgia. Showers also are expected from the northern Plains to the upper Great Lakes.

Minimum/maximum temperatures over the next 24 hours will include:

Civilian crew dies

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A civilian cargo plane crashed just after takeoff Saturday at Kelly Air Force Base, killing its three crew members, officials said.

Base spokeswoman Phoebe Brown said the plane apparently had taken off when it veered and crashed about 4:15 a.m. The plane sheered off part of the maintenance hangar as it fell, she said.

The cargo plane was en route to Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Ohio, said Ms. Brown. About six people in the base operations building near the site of the crash were evacuated, no one on the ground was injured, she said.

Bill Cress, spokesman for Southern Air Transport, which leases the plane to the Air Force, identified the dead as Capt. Peter Sammett, 52, of Fayetteville, N.C., 1st Officer Phillip Vecenzo, 31, of San Rafael, Calif., and flight engineer Leon Mulcahey, 60, of Resida, Calif.

Contraceptives at schools

NEW YORK (AP) — Students at nine city high schools can get contraceptives through state-funded school programs, according to a report published today.

The nine schools set up health clinics two years ago, but no announcement of the contraceptives services was made because the clinics were not required to "itemize every service," said Marion Schwarz.

Fetal abuse case spawns debates

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Feminists, abortion foes and civil libertarians have joined an emotional debate over the rights of the fetus in the case of a woman charged with contributing to her baby's death by alleged drug abuse during her pregnancy.

Pamela Rae Stewart, 27, faces a year in jail and a $2,000 fine if convicted of a misdemeanor count of failing to provide medical care for a son who was born brain dead with amphetamines in his system. Stewart, of suburban El Cajon, is free on $2,500 bail. A hearing is scheduled Wednesday to set a trial date.

"If a woman can be held accountable for the fetus to the degree that they are trying to hold Stewart accountable, then the next step is to take away abortion rights," said Benita Berkson, co-president of the San Diego County chapter of the National Organization for Women.

Stewart's child lived five weeks on life support systems before dying on New Year's Day. A coroner's report listed maternal drug abuse as a contributing factor in the death.

Thomas Monson, Stewart's husband, has denied that his wife abused drugs during her pregnancy. Stewart has declined to be interviewed.

Deputy District Attorney Harry Elias is basing his prosecution on Stewart's alleged disregard of a doctor's orders to stay away from drugs and to seek immediate medical attention if she began to hemorrhage.

Stewart suffered from placenta previa, a condition in which the placenta can block the birth canal and cause severe bleeding at delivery.

"This is not the first woman who hemorrhaged and didn't rush to the hospital," said Stewart's attorney Richard Boesen. "A lot of this could be out of ignorance. There was nothing willful or intentional. All you've got here is an allegation of improper prenatal care."

Though Stewart was warned that drug abuse could jeopardize the baby, "ultimately it's her decision," Berkson said. "Really, it gets down to her personal rights."

It is believed to be the first criminal prosecution stemming from alleged fetal abuse accusations to a computer search of legal literature conducted by California Deputy Attorney General Howard Wayne.

"The facts in this case are not nearly as important as the implica[illegible]

[illegible] the American Civil Liberties Union office in San Diego.

It just opens up too many areas to criminal penalties," she said. "What about the woman who can't afford prenatal care? There are opinions that caffeine in coffee, smoking and social drinking are not good for the fetus. I mean, where on Earth would it end?"

[illegible] law professor at Western State [illegible] of San Diego, said she sees the possibility that every time a child is born to a mother with a drug or alcohol problem, the mother could be prosecuted.

"That's absolute baloney," district attorney [illegible] Casey said. Based [illegible] in which there is [illegible] attributable to the defendant which in our view falls within a specific statute.

Sheinwold on Bridge

Legal Larceny

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

As a federal judge, Amalya Kearse deals sternly with the larcenous. At the bridge table, she is delighted to commit some larceny of her own as in today's hand during the recent North American Championships in Toronto.

North's response of two notrump is used by many tournament experts to get to three of a long suit without forcing to game. South must bid three clubs, and if North has length in some other suit, he bids it over three clubs.

TAKES ACE

Kearse took the ace of clubs at the first trick, judging it unlikely that West was leading from the king. To mask her club length, she dropped the ten from her hand.

Declarer led a diamond from dummy, losing the queen to the ace. West led his other trump to the king, and Kearse judiciously dropped the jack. East led her singleton heart, and Kearse lost the queen to the king.

West now returned a heart, expecting his partner to ruff, but dummy's ten of hearts won, and the judge ran her diamonds, discarding a spade from dummy.

DAILY QUESTION

You hold: ♠ A 10 6 5 4 2 ♡ 7 ◇ 8 4 3 2 ♣ K 2. Partner bids one heart, you respond one spade, and he then bids two hearts. The opponents pass. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two spades. This rebid almost surely promises a six-card suit, shortness in hearts and a willingness to be dropped right there. If you had a better hand, you would bid a new suit, notrump or three spades. If you could be sure partner had six hearts, you would pass; but he may have only five hearts for his rebid.

District governor visits Lions Club

Garland "Fuzzy" Campbell, District 14-M governor of the Lions, made his official visit to the Fayette City-Washington Twp. Lions Club at a recent dinner meeting.

Joining Campbell were Jim Higginbotham, deputy district governor; Andy Vahaly, Zone B chairman, and George Hogan, Zone A chairman.

President Joe Walko conducted the meeting, and Jack Everly offered invocation.

Vahaly, chairman of the Jeff Hewitt fund drive, reported on that project. In addition to events already held, he said Country Christmas '86 will be held Dec. 13 at Washington Twp. Fire Hall and will feature Shades of Just Us, Country Outlaws, and The Country Blues.

14-M newsletter this month will carry an invitation for all 54 clubs in the district to help with the Hewitt Fund. Similar requests will be made of all district governors in the state.

In another report, Vahaly told about the Drug Awareness program and the essay and poster contest that has been started at Bellmar Junior High School. The club will award prizes of a $50 savings bond to winners in each contest in grades seven, eight and nine. Theme of the contest is Danger in Disguise. A drug awareness contest also is taking place in District 14-M.

Vahaly also reported on the state band and suggested that the club contact the Lions units in Belle Vernon and Rostraver Twp. on the possibility of sponsoring someone in the state band. He also thanked Walko, Lou Lindey, Larry Breckenridge and Leroy Gardner for their "special help" with the Jeff Hewitt project.

Warren Grier reported on a special fund for Christmas and the possibility of a Halloween party. Vahaly suggested the club take part in the Fayette City Halloween parade, and Gardner said he would inquire about it. Robert Rathway reported on the candy, which began Oct. 1.

District governor Campbell spoke briefly and talked about International President Sten A. Akestan of Sweden and the theme, "Bring quality to life." He praised Vahaly for his efforts in the drug awareness program, and also talked about various district projects.

The next meeting of the club will be Oct. 9.

TWO FOR ONE — The 1,834th star embedded in the Hollywood Walk of Fame has been dedicated to The Everly Brothers, who recorded such hits as "Bye Bye Love" and "Wake Up, Little Susie." About 1,000 people, showed up for the dedication. "The Everly Brothers have been an important influence on music," Petty said. "Their harmonies were ground-breaking." Don and Phil Everly first hit the pop music charts in 1957 with "Bye Bye Love." During the next five years, they produced a hit record every three months and "Cathy's Clown."

Eisengart exhibit at Unique Auras

Unique Auras is presenting an exhibit of paintings by Shirl Eisengart

The show opened Oct. 3 and will run throughg Nov. 6.

Eisengart, a lifelong resident of West Mifflin, has been painting for 40 years. She is a well-established artist and her works are included in many national collections.

While still in grade school, she was chosen from many students to attend the Tam-O-Shanter Art School, a division of Carnegie Institute. She also was honored with a scholarship for the Art Institute of Pittsburgh, and she has attended many art workshops including one taught by artist Frank Webb.

Eisengart has had three exhibits in a well-established gallery in Nantucket, Conn Recently, she showed her works in the Creative Arts Council juried exhibit in the Mon Valley She won first, Best of Show, and third prize in the painting category. She has done many commissioned works, including a large mural for the Peterbilt and Sears buildings in Allegheny Center in Pittsburgh.

For the one-woman show at Unique Auras, Belle Vernon R.D. 3, Eisengart has painted 29 new works She will feature many wildlife and duck works, along with many using the theme of Nantucket and Williamsburg. This is the first time these works have been exhibited

All of Ms. Eisengart's works are for sale, and they can be viewed upstairs in the gallery of Unique Auras on Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and on Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. Additional information is available by calling 929-8877.

Edwards set at Arts event

The Creative Arts Council of the Mon Valley will present a special program Tuesday, Oct. 7, at Mon Valley Community Health Center in Monessen.

Herb Edwards, noted artists from Donora, will discuss "This Business of Art." Lecture and discussion topics will include how to price your artwork, tax laws that apply to the artist, value of artwork after death, the IRS and the artist, copyrights, and the rights of the copyrighted artist.

"All of these subjects are vital to the well-being and production of art and should be of interest to anyone who is involved with any aspect of art, from the professional painter to the weekend craftsman," said a spokesman for the Creative Arts Council.

Tuesday's meeting will be held on the fourth floor of the Health Center. It begins at 7:30 p.m. and is open to all interested persons. Refreshments will be served.

The women of Ivy League fight back

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Feminists of the Ivy League are contesting Playboy's unclad version of the "Women of the Ivy League" with a magazine of their own.

Forty thousand editions hit campus newstands this fall to counter the idea that "women exist only as entertainment for men," says Renee Schwalberg, a student editor from Yale

Playboy, in a mild-mannered rebuff, says that its October issue of dressed and undressed coeds shows "the student mind works as well as its body."

But that gets a hoot from feminists, who note many of the models are in unlikely study positions.

"There was never any question that beautiful women can be smart," says senior Andrea Lockett, one of the three University of Pennsylvania students behind the $12,000 feminist project. "We can do more than must lie there and look blank."

In the feminist magazine, women show how women really are, she says, through poetry, fiction and essays. They had no interest, Ms. Schwalberg said, in depicting men in fig leaves. "There is no point in dealing with men the way they deal with women," she says.

Of the few nudes, the most prominent is of a middle-aged woman lolling on a bed, displaying her bulges. The centerfold is pen and ink drawing of an androgynous subject, and that is framed by student writings condemning Playboy's "careless" attitude toward sex, birth control, child-care and health care

Feminists went into action in the spring, when Playboy photographer David Chan tried placing ads recruiting student models His posters were ripped up, his plans were denounced and he was met with impromptu demonstrations, including a gathering of women dressed as Barbie dolls.

At Cornell University, in Ithaca, N.Y., Chan encountered 50 protesters who later auctioned off a creature named Miss Ogyny for $500, Playboy's payment to nude students.

Twenty-three students interviewed with Chan and posed anyway, at $100 for a clothed shot. Junior Patricia Niewisch, 20, bared all, saying she expected her Ivy peers to be more openminded "Nobody is forcing them to look at it," she says. "That's my answer to all feminists."

Whether to pose or not to pose came up in many classrooms, says Joan Jacobs Brumberg, Cornell's women's studies director. Students who did were regarded with mixed feelings, she said. "In my class I heard both disgust, surprise, annoyance and awe."

But mostly she heard disgust. "These are young women who are very, very intent on demonstrating their intellectual excellence They regard this particular view of women as a way of ... reducing women to bodies"

Niewisch remains pleased with the outcome, although some of her peers now think she's a "little loose," she said. But other models are less enthusiastic.

In the Penn campus newspaper, senior Jacqueline Varoli sniffed at the money Playboy offered to do a nude shot. As a professional model, she said she had been offered "$10,000 for that kind of work."

Natasha King, a 19-year-old Penn sophomore who stretched out on a banister in a frat house, wasn't thrilled, either.

" A lot of people don't think I look like I do in the picture," she said. "They think the picture is much worse than how I look in real life, and I think so, too. I don't like it that much. I think the makeup job wasn't too good."

The feminists, who turned down Playboy's offer to fund their publication, are predictably disappointed with their sisters "Maybe they're not aware of the history of Playboy as a misogynist publication," Ms. Lockett says. Maybe they're not aware, she adds, that Playboy reprised its 1979 Ivy League sampler to show the Ivies are still a man's domain.

"I think what they're trying to tell women is, 'If you're going to come into the Ivy League, where you don't belong, then come as a sex object, and then we will accept you'"
